You may talk about Russia, Germany, the Allies, disarmament, Japan, finance, political economy, science, literature AND the musical glasses, and the public will read listlessly, looking for something "interesting."

When you say "Babe Ruth knocks nine home runs in his first day's practice," you have said enough. You have concentrated attention.

That helps to explain why some millions of human beings have to have things done FOR them; their minds are not on their REAL problems. They're on Babe Ruth or the movies, or some killing lady's diary.

General Wood is going to the Philippines March 25. Our Japanese friends will notice that the government is interested in that outpost.

It is to be hoped that General Wood is NOT going on a special battleship, to burn up enough coal on one trip to keep a thousand American families through a Winter.

This country has seen enough of that nonsense in the last few years. A government that TALKS economy as the present government does very well, will practice it.

Senator Knox says he will press his resolution for an immediate independent peace with Germany. The harder he presses the better. The sooner the United States withdraws completely from the European muddle of invading, grabbing, fighting and foolishness the better.

President Harding's intention is to arrange, if he can, for revision of the Versailles peace treaty on common-sense lines; and, failing that, to make a German peace inside of sixty days. It might be better to BEGIN with peace as regards the United States, and let Europe muddle her own affairs to suit herself. We've been "making the world safe for democracy" long enough. Time to make this country prosperous for its workers.

France, England, Belgium, with their troops in Germany, probably wonder by now what they are doing there. General Degoutte, representing France, tells the German workers his will help them to produce. The German workers, knowing that he is there to take all they produce, will not be enthusiastic producers.

Chaos in Russia, and the repudiation of debts that always goes with revolutionary anarchy, have cost the French nation thirty thousand million francs. France will never get a dollar of that money. The more she helps and drives the Russians to butcher each other, the less they will be able to pay even if they wanted to. You can't collect billions from cripples.

The situation in Germany may produce an imitation of Russia. Today France could get from Germany a sum greater than the total amount lost through the Russian revolution. If the French were wise, they would take from Germany what Germany can pay, enough to make up for the Russian loss. They would charge the Russian loss to "profit, loss and experience," and resume business with a determination hereafter not to lend their billions to any autocracy.

"Free Liberty Bonds" have again dropped in value. Above a hundred and one at one time, they are now down to ninety. They are called "Free Bonds" because rich men holding them are not taxed on the income from those bonds. Bankers are puzzled by the drop, but needn't be. It means that men with money believe that big incomes are soon to be protected by special legislation. Therefore a bond paying 3½ per cent. is no longer tempting, even though it be "a Free Bond."

The government will spend $100,000 to get rid of one kind of lady bug. This wicked lady bug, instead of eating pests that injure plants, as all self-respecting lady bugs do, eats fertilizers that farmers put on their crops.

It is a misguided bug, imitating a parrot in Australia that used to eat insects that gathered on the sheep, and did good work. Then it learned to drive its sharp beak through the sheep's wool into the fat around the kidneys, and killed sheep in thousands. Animals and human nature are not so far apart. Even lady bugs and parrots can become grafters.

2 BROKERS QUERIED IN ROBBERY CASE

Federal Reserve Bank Said to Have Accepted Stolen Papers on Loan for $15,000

New York, March 10.—Seven men, well known in the downtown district, were arrested here early today in connection with the robbery of Liberty bonds valued at $466,000 from two messengers of Kean, Taylor & Co., No. 5 Nassau street.

The men who were questioned today by District Attorney Lewis of Kings County are:

Nathaniel H. Wheeler, Hotel Plaza, in whose brokerage office in the Arcade Building the arrests were made.

William Parmalee, engineer.

Richard Longenecker, broker, No. 1 Wall street; residing at City Club.

Frank C. Martin, horse trainer, Lexington, Ky.

August Chardenet, head waiter, Hotel Commodore.

Fred Cahlo, Genoa, N. Y.

E. Seeley, with offices in Woolworth Building.

Mystery shrouded the arrests at the office of the district attorney, but it was learned that he is seeking information regarding $60,000 of the registered bonds, which were said to have come to light. It was also reported that the Federal Reserve Bank had actually accepted $20,000 of the stolen bonds on a loan of $15,000.

Wheeler's offices are located on East 42d street and are elaborately furnished. On the door are the following inscriptions: "Dupont Copper Mining Company," "Lone Star Copper Mining Company," "Samuel J. Kleiser, Attorney-at-Law, State of Pennsylvania."

The robbery occurred on November 20 last.

BLOSSOM SEELEY

St. Paul, Minn., March 10.—Blossom Seeley today announced that for the third time she had embarked on the sea of matrimony. She announced her marriage to Benjamin P. Gerenfeld of Milwaukee, her dancing partner, known professionally as Benny Fields. It is her third marriage, her last previous spouse being Ruhe Marquard, the baseball pitcher.

Her first husband was Joseph Cahan, whose stage name was Joseph Kane. He was manager of the baseball skit, "The Nineteenth Straight," in which Miss Seeley appeared in 1912. Marquard also appeared in the skit.

In November, 1912, Cahan sued Marquard for $25,000 for alienating the affections of the vaudeville actress. It was later said that the suit was settled for $4,000.

In January, 1918, Miss Seeley was divorced. Three months later she married Marquard in San Francisco.

She was granted a divorce from the baseball player in Chicago on the grounds of desertion.

Benedict Deplores Killings in Erin and Disturbances in Parts of Italy

By International News Service.

Rome, March 10.—Especial mention was made of hostilities in Italy and Ireland in an allocution issued by Pope Benedict today urging all nations to restore "A real Christian peace."

After deploring the fighting between political factions in Italy the Pope expressed the belief that the guerrilla fighting in Ireland arose from a national desire on the part of the Irish for freedom.

The pontiff said that all violence is to be deplored, including the retaliation measures of the British military authorities in Ireland which forces its ruling must be condemned.

The allocution holds in condemnation equally the violence of Irish patriots and that of the Black and Tans poisoned in Ireland.

In a memorandum, filed by Crane's counsel, it is stated that there is no basis for the suit, as Crane has paid for his wife's support.

EXAMINE STOMACH OF DEAD WIFE

Body of West Brookfield Woman Exhumed by Authorities in Death Probe

Ware, March 10.—Following an autopsy by three medical examiners, a sweeping investigation is being conducted into the sudden death of Mrs. Noelia Fountain, who died February 2, while in delicate health.

Her husband, Raymond Fountain of West Brookfield, was married on March 2 to Miss Grace Russell, daughter of George Russell of this place.

Mrs. Fountain, about to become a mother, is said to have taken some orangeade shortly before her death. She died in convulsions within a few hours.

Before her marriage she was Miss Noelia Desforges of this town. Her mother and brothers and sisters reside in West Brookfield, to which she moved following her marriage to Raymond Fountain.

It is understood that members of her family requested District Attorney Edward T. Esty to make an investigation.

The body was exhumed from the grave in Mount Carmel Cemetery, into which it was lowered February 4 last.

The autopsy was performed by Medical Examiners Ernest H. Hunt, Charles A. Deland and M. W. Pearson. The stomach has been sent to have the contents analyzed.

The death certificate stated that the woman died from convulsions resulting from her condition.

The dead woman was twenty-six years old. Fountain is about thirty years old, and his new bride is about his own age.

The newly married couple reside in West Bronkfield, where Fountain has been employed in the mills.

The dead woman left one child.

ALARMED "DRYS" OPEN FIGHT ON PALMER'S SWEEPING RULING

Washington, March 10.—With the prohibition forces perplexed and alarmed, Anti-Saloon League Counsel Wayne B. Wheeler today fired the first shots of their attack on the opinion of former Attorney-General Palmer, which lifts all limitations on permits for whiskey, wine and beer for medicinal purposes.

Prohibition Commissioner Kramer and his chief aides are preparing their resignations and the stage is being set for an entirely new deal. New blood will be injected into the office of the commissioner, with new and entirely different conceptions of applying the provisions of the Volstead law. Along with this reorganization there will be a number of orders, though by no means of the spectacular kind, designed to restrict dry agent "stage play."

Commissioner Williams of the Internal Revenue Department said the inevitable clean-sweep in official personnel probably would mean a slight setback in dry law enforcement. An announcement of a new revenue commissioner is expected within a few days.

SAYS BEER NEVER INTENDED.

"The construction permitting the prescribing of beer as a medicine is not in accord with the purpose of the law," Wayne B. Wheeler declared. "The law authorizes the prescribing of whiskey, but only one-half pint in ten days with proper safeguards. It was never intended that beer should be prescribed as medicine.

"None of the State prohibition codes allow the prescribing of beer, and Congress clearly did not intend to attempt to legalize what the State laws prohibit. Unless the opinion is overruled, Congress should amend the law. It is difficult, of course, to overrule it because the government and the brewers are on the same side of the case and there is no one to contest it unless the new Attorney-General overrules the opinion."

DAUGHERTY REFUSES COMMENT.

Attorney-General Daugherty, Mr. Palmer's successor, would make no comment on the opinion rendered by his predecessor, but officials pointed out that while opinions are sometimes reversed, a request for reconsideration would have to come from some government official or bureau involved. It was also pointed out that thirty-nine States now prohibit the use of beer as a medicine, and that the interstate liquor shipment law prohibits shipments of liquor into States where the sale or use of such liquor is prohibited by State law.

Clara Smith Hamon Goes on Trial as Slayer

Mrs. Jake L. Hamon (left), widow of the victim, and Clara Smith Hamon, the two outstanding figures at trial of the girl, which opened today at Ardmore, Okla. The ravages of sorrow have left a deep imprint on the once beautiful face of the widow.

Ardmore, Okla., March 10.—Clara Smith Hamon, whose stormy life drama has attracted the eyes of the nation to her during the last few months, went on trial here today charged with the murder of Jake L. Hamon, Oklahoma oil king and Republican national committeeman.

The trial will be a spectacular battle between two women, it early developed. Clara Smith Hamon is fighting for life and reputation. Mrs. Jake L. Hamon, widow of the slain oil king, is fighting for his good name and the good name of her children.

The defendant was calm and confident during the preliminary legal skirmishing. She displayed keen, intelligent interest in the choosing of the jury, a process likely to take some days.

Indications were that the trial would be more sensational than any ever held in the Southwest.

The entire story of Clara Smith Hamon's relations with Jake Hamon, the wealthy middle-aged man she is quoted as saying "dominated" her for many years, will in all probability be brought out on the stand.

So will the circumstances surrounding her wild flight into Mexico after the shooting, and while Jake Hamon was still alive.

The prosecution will try to prove that on his deathbed Jake Hamon charged that Clara Smith Hamon shot him, after threatening him.

To prove this, the State will rely principally on the testimony of Frank Ketch, business manager of Hamon's property, Rev. T. J. Irwin and Erret Dunlap, former business associate of the oil king and G. O. P. leader.

Against their word will be the testimony of witnesses for the defence, who will tell of talking to Hamon before he died, and are expected to deny he made any such accusation.

There will also be the story of the girl herself, only living witness to the tragedy.

The defence will introduce a statement given to the newspapers by Ketch, in which the oil man was quoted as saying before he died that he had accidentally shot himself.

It seemed probable today as the trial began that the famous series of newspaper interviews in which Clara Smith Hamon described her life with Jake Hamon would be read into the records.

In those interviews, some of them given while she was still in Mexico, she said that for years Hamon had "dominated" her, becoming her lover when she was seventeen years old, and he was forty-two.

Since that time, until just before the shooting in a hotel here the night of November 21 last, they were together much of the time. She was technically his employe.

Hamon was the father of her small son, she told newspaper interviewers.

She said she wanted to be good, but had not strength to break away from his mastery.

LOSE FIGHT FOR SEPARATE TRIALS

14 Defendants in Old Colony Foreign Exchange Case to Be Heard Together

The trial of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Brightwell and twelve others formerly connected with the Old Colony Foreign Exchange Company proceeded slowly today in Superior Court.

Counsel for the accused, all of whom are charged with conspiracy to steal and several of whom are further charged with larceny and being accessory to larceny, lost their fight for separate trials.

Judge Fessenden, in ruling that they must be tried together, gave their attorneys thirty days in which to file exceptions.

Judge Fessenden did quash four counts in three of the sixteen indictments. The amounts named were less than $100, making the offence only misdemeanors, not subject to indictment. There are 129 counts remaining.

Mrs. Brightwell, wife of the president of the exploded "get-rich-quick" company, was the centre of interest as arguments were made. Neatly dressed and apparently carefree, she sat next to her husband.

New York, March 10.—William R. A revolver was lying nearby, but there was no bullet wound on Miller. His skull was fractured. Police believe he either fell or jumped from a fire escape.

Will Seize Customs in American Zone

By International News Service.

Paris, March 10.—The allies have decided to apply customs penalties upon Germany without excepting the American zone of occupation from the other districts held by allied armies of occupation, according to special dispatches from London to French newspapers today.

The allied statesmen who considered the subject in conference at London yesterday were said to have reached the decision that the regulation of economic questions being nonmilitary in character, does not affect the army of occupation.

The treaty issues involved, it was pointed out, are in the hands of the economic experts of the Inter-allied high commission.

gram, Krasnaja Gorka and Oranienbaum had gone over to the rebels.

According to advices received by the Foreign Office here, the rebels have captured the fort at Pkhof, east of Petrograd, and also the railway junction at Bologoy, in the same district.

A report was received from Riga that the Bolshevist were retreating along the Nicolaievsky Railway. Several cavalry regiments were said to be moving from Smolensk towards Petrograd, plundering wayside villages. The railwaymen had refused to move troop trains.

"Soviet troops commanded personally by Trotsky have recaptured Krasnaja Gorka," said a Central News dispatch from Helsingfors.

(Note—Trotsky had previously been reported at Krasnaja Gorka, directing operations against the rebels in the sector of Kronstadt.)

A second Central News dispatch from Helsingfors said: "Moscow admits that in the fighting at Kronstadt on March 8 (Tuesday) the Bolshevik casualties were 700. During the recent fighting at Moscow, when the Soviet arrested the executive committee of the Mensheviks, fifty were killed and 800 wounded.

"Numerous risings against the Central government are reported. The 'Whites' are reported to have won a great victory in the Kursk region."

The following Helsingfors dispatch was received by the Daily Express this afternoon:

"Red troops attempted an attack against Kronstadt, across the ice from Oranienbaum, but were repulsed with heavy artillery fire. Refugees arriving here report wholesale executions of captured insurgents at Petrograd.

"Many persons suspected of sympathy with the counter revolution were put to death. The Petrograd streets are under military guard."

Berlin Hears Revolt in Russia Is Checked

Berlin, March 10.—A secret congress of Soviets is in session in Moscow, considering the Russian international situation, said a private dispatch from Moscow today, dated March 7. Service on the Moscow-Petrograd railway was uninterrupted when the dispatch was sent and travelers arriving in Moscow from the former capital said that order was being restored under the most rigid military control. A military curfew has been imposed. The private Moscow telegram concluded with the words: "The revolution is no longer spreading."

In response to a wireless inquiry as to the true situation at Petrograd, the following radiogram was received from Moscow, signed by Aleberg, Kaytchki and Nuortava:

"On March 5 Krasnaja Gorka was in our hands. This fort, which lies upon the mainland, completely dominates the fortress of Kronstadt. The garrison of Krasnaja Gorka was hostile toward the rebels and anxious to fight them."

A military patrol surprised a bridge wrecking party at Cleaskilty. Firing on the wreckers the military wounded and captured four.

Crown forces raided Coolagrain, near Skibbereen, and burned to the ground dwellings of Sinn Feiners in reprisal for the deaths of two farmers who were recently shot. Damages aggregating several thousand of pounds were inflicted.

Alex McCabe, Sinn Fein member of Parliament for South Sligo, has been arrested and is held in custody of the military.

The Half Price Sale at the Continental a Wonderful Event

Probably the greatest Clothing Sale ever held in New England is going on at the two Continental Stores.

This concern found themselves loaded with fine clothing made by Hart, Schaffner & Marx and have taken a radical step to unload.

A stock of a million and a half of the finest clothes made in the world is now selling at one-half the original prices.

This means two things—First, the Continental Stores are taking an enormous loss and that you can buy the best clothes today at prices lower than you'll be able to purchase in the next two years.

The response has been tremendous as people have been coming from all over New England and many have purchased several suits for their anticipated wants.

The number of winter overcoats people are buying for next winter is remarkable. The prices named are much less than is possible for the next two winters.

You can be perfectly fitted at either of the stores, the Boylston St. Store carries a large stock of boys' clothing.

DIVORCED WIFE OF LAWSON'S SON CALLS FINANCIER "CLOSE"

ARNOLD MERE "PUPPET" OF HIS FATHER, SHE SAYS

Revelations regarding life in the family of Thomas W. Lawson, in which the financier was characterized as "close" was made today by Mrs. Lucie Mitchell Lawson, who was granted a divorce from Arnold Lawson on the ground of desertion.

In an interview with the Boston American Mrs. Lawson said that Arnold was a "puppet" in his father's hands, that a fortune which the son inherited from his mother mysteriously disappeared, and that there was never any ready cash in the Lawson household.

The young woman, who also divorced her first husband, Herbert Barnum Seeley, host at the famous "Seeley dinner" in New York, said that her life had been filled with horror, and warned girls to obey their mothers in the matter of marriage.

Mrs. Lawson said she was unable to obtain alimony because Arnold Lawson had no money and no way of suing him.

She said she was compelled to agree to a settlement whereby the four children of the couple will be educated by the father, presumably at his father's expense. She will have them on weekends, however, and the rest of the time will devote to writing motion picture scenarios.

TRIED TO AVOID DIVORCE.

Mrs. Lawson was found by the Boston American representative at the home of her friend, Mrs. John Curtin, No. 404 Marlborough street, with whom she has lived since the separation with young Lawson.

"I did everything I possibly could to avoid bringing the suit for divorce," said she, "both on account of the children and also because of my faith, which is Roman Catholic. I went through such horror, however, that I was compelled to resort to the courts.

"My trouble with Arnold Lawson began four years ago when we lived at No. 311 Marlborough street. Mr. Lawson and I differed as to medical treatment for my child.

As a result of this experience I stipulated that I should have the right, when visiting the children on week-ends after the divorce was granted, to take a physician to them if they were ill.

EDUCATED BY FATHER.

The children, Vera, Jean, Thomas W., 2nd, and Arnold, Jr., will be educated by their father. I was compelled to accept this plan as I had no way of supporting them, and I fear to undertake it. I am to see them each week-end, but as Arnold only gave me $50 a month for expenses I will have to depend on the kindness of my friends for most of my transportation.

"Arnold is a mere puppet in the hands of his father.

"While I was married to Arnold Lawson I rarely saw any cash. We had a great deal of credit but there was little ready money, and what there was had a habit of disappearing mysteriously. Arnold was supposed to have inherited $1,000,000 from the estate of his mother, but if he did it has disappeared.

MOTHER OPPOSED MARRIAGE.

"My mother was strongly opposed to my marriage with Arnold. I think if daughters would listen to the advice of mothers about marriage we might not have so many unfortunate ones. An aunt of mine in Baltimore, who is regent of the Colonial Dames in that city, refused to speak to me after I married Arnold Lawson.

"On one occasion I put the girls in a convent at Elmhurst, outside of Providence. That angered Arnold, who had no use for Catholics, and he went there, threatening to take the girls away by force.

"The Mother Superior called me up about the matter, and as the nuns were caring for the children out of charity and as I had no money, I told her that Arnold take them. I did not want to give the convent any unenviable notoriety. Arnold then took the girls to Dreamwold.

WRITES SCENARIO ON LIFE.

"As far as the incident is concerned in the boarding house at No. 198 Commonwealth avenue, when Leonard Lawrence was found in my room, that was a despicable trick. It was a frame up. It occurred while the children had the measles and I was ill with influenza.

"The negro servants were afraid to enter the apartment, and so Mr. Lawrence volunteered to carry them in a tray of food. He lived upstairs. My husband had planted a detective under the guise of a trained nurse in the apartment, and his divorce suit resulted from that.

"I am very much alone now except for loyal friends such as Mrs. Curtin. On Friday I am going to New York with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wendell, and after a short visit will return to Boston and take up the work of writing scenarios.

"One of these scenarios founded on my own life, I have already written and it is being considered by a large picture company. I have had much horror and tragedy in my life that if the scenario is produced the way I wrote it I doubt if anyone would sit through the entire film.

CHINESE FAMINE FUND FAR UNDER REAL NEED

New York, March 10.—The American committee of the Chinese famine fund has received information from Pekin to the effect that the money so far collected throughout the world will provide food only for about 3,500,000 of the 4,000,000 who are in danger of dying of starvation.

Boy Victim of Sleeping Sickness Improves

Arthur A. Clark, of Wakefield, nineteen-day victim of "sleeping sickness," whose malady was marked by continual clipping of newspapers.

Improvement was reported today in the condition of Arthur A. Clark, thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. David H. Clark of No. 117 Vernet street, Wakefield, who has been a victim of sleeping sickness for nineteen days.

He went to sleep at 2:30 yesterday afternoon and awoke shortly after 3 o'clock this morning, when his mind seemed clearer than for many days. He requested a pencil and said he wanted to write to keep awake. But it was only a few minutes when he dozed off to sleep.

Shortly after seven this morning he again awoke, and though still dizzy, was able to converse coherently for a few minutes. He was fed light food as usual in the morning. He wanted to sit up in bed and did so for a few minutes, but was unable to stay awake and again relapsed into a state of coma.

Mrs. Clark has written a letter to the boy's father, who is believed to be at either Vera Cruz or New Orleans. He is an engineer on a merchant marine vessel and has been away from home since last September. He does not know of his son's illness.

Perhaps the strangest case of the new malady of sleeping sickness, which medical science is at a loss to cope with, this case has given the doctors helpful information on the disease properly known as encephalitis lethargica or inflammation of the brain.

The first three days of his attack he insisted upon clipping the pictures out of newspapers and magazines, which he continued for three days and nights, finally succumbing to sleep. Since then he has slept about twenty-two out of twenty-four hours. Dizziness and double vision have been symptoms the latter having vanished.

Another night he awoke and had a mania for counting his fingers, which he did over and over again for half an hour.

He is one of five children, the oldest being fifteen years of age and the youngest two months. He is a pupil at the Hurd School in Wakefield.

Last December he underwent an operation for appendicitis at the Massachusetts General Hospital. He had recovered and was going to school again, when the sleeping sickness attacked him.

COALITION WILL STAND BY SOLLEY

Leaders and Counsel for Accused Secretary Confer on Defence Plans

"We will meet the issue squarely before the court."

This was the statement today of Charles C. Ramsey of counsel for George W. Solley, the indicted executive secretary of the Loyal Coalition, as he began the initial preparation of the defence of his client.

"My instructions and the requests of some of those involved, preclude me from making any statement of our plans at this time," explained Mr. Ramsey.

But one outstanding fact has been revealed in the sudden new note of discord thrust into the somewhat stormy latter chapter of the Loyal Coalition. That is, that the coalition and its president, Demarest Lloyd, are going to stand back of the executive officer.

STAND BY ACCUSED MAN.

One clause to the leaders of the organization today declared that the Coalition has shown the utmost confidence and regard for Mr. Solley and would not change that attitude.

Following the arrest of Solley and his arraignment before Judge Irwin in the Superior Criminal Court yesterday, on a serious charge, the Coalition leaders and counsel went into conference, which lasted some hours.

The allegations upon which Solley was indicted have already been before the civil courts.

These charges are said to have grown out of the difficulties Mr. Solley had with a Canadian soldier, Christopher O'Hare, of No. 49 St. James avenue.

WIFE ALSO ENTERS SUIT.

O'Hare brought suit, followed by another entered by O'Hare's wife, Gertrude, $10,000.

The papers in these suits were impounded by the court.

Solley was arrested shortly after the Grand Jury had returned its indictments against him. He was taken in custody while reading a paper in the offices of the Loyal Coalition, No. 31 St. James street.

The indictment includes four counts. On each Solley pleaded not guilty, on the request of Assistant Attorney Fielding, who appeared for the prosecution. He was held in $5,000.

18 EX-MINISTER.

Surety was furnished by Samuel W. Johnson of No. 594 Broadway, South Boston. He offered two pieces of property at No. 179 and No. 419 Second street, South Boston.

Solley lives at No. 481 Audubon road and is a former minister, having served as pastor of Christ Church, Dorchester. He is fifty-seven years of age.

It was some weeks ago that the first action against Solley was registered in the courts.

This occurred when Solley instituted proceedings intended to test the sanity of O'Hare, who had been under observation at the Psychopathic Hospital. O'Hare, however, won the test and escaped being sent to an asylum.

Following this action he filed suit against Solley for $18,000, and a little later his wife also filed suit against the Coalition official.

POLICEMAN VICTIM OF SLEEPING SICKNESS

The latest victim of sleeping sickness in Boston is Patrolman Patrick J. McQuillon of Station 15, Charlestown, an overseas veteran, who lives on Ophir street, Jamaica Plain.

McQuillon is a patient at the Faulkner Hospital, Jamaica Plain, and his physician, Dr. Charles Malone, believes he has an even chance for recovery.

BAXTER SCORES PAPER COMPANY ON LOBBYING

Arraigns Opposition to Proposed Maine State Park at Mt. Katahdin

Augusta, Me., March 10.—The Great Northern Paper Company, one of the largest owners of timber lands in Maine, was scathingly arraigned by Governor Baxter in a special message to the Legislature today for its opposition to the proposed State park at Mt. Katahdin.

Intimation of the opposition were accused of working against the plan in the legislative corridors.

"The proposed park will before the committee on State lands and forest preservation," said the Governor's message. "It was suggested that one of the great timber land owning companies might make a gift of certain lands in Mt. Katahdin township.

"In so far as I have heard, this suggestion was indefinite, having been brought to my attention through newspaper accounts of the hearing. This paper company owns an undivided three-eighths interest in Mount Katahdin township and I should not seriously consider giving a portion of this three-eighths interest to the State, such portion of the land as contained timber of pulp wood would probably be reserved from the gift.

"It is to be regretted that this great company, which has been given rights of untold value to water resources of Maine, should oppose this park. It is generally understood that this opposition does not come from a desire on the part of this company to serve the State of Maine from the aesthetic point of view, but that it seeks to prevent the State from exercising its sovereign right of eminent domain.

"The legislative agents of this company have decreed that their Legislature shall not establish a park, for so do so the State must use its power to take land from the private owner.

"It should be remembered, however, that the very company which opposes this bill has repeatedly been given rights of eminent domain by the State, which rights have been exercised by that company for private gain and not for public uses. It is unfortunate that an attempt to dominate the Maine Legislature should be made by the representatives of this powerful corporation."

LOYAL COALITION IS WHAT?

NEW CARPENTER WEDDING GETS NURSE'S O. K.

Brookline Woman Says She Is Sure That the Bride Will Be Happy

"Because Major Carpenter and Mrs. Klink may have been unfortunate in previous marriages is no reason why they should not expect happiness this time."

Such is the comment of the nurse of Mrs. Rita Hoagland Klink, made at the home of Mrs. Charlotte Hoagland, sister of the late Capt. Carpenter, at No. 115 Freeman street, Brookline. The remark was made apropos of the marriage, two weeks ago, at Dover, N. H., of Mrs. Klink and Major Ralph Carpenter, whose divorce suits are famous in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

"I first met Mrs. Klink as a very little girl, said the nurse and caretaker at the Freeman street apartment," when she, with her mother, Mrs. Hoagland, was travelling in England. I have been with them ever since.

"And I know Mrs. Carpenter is going to be happy, for she is a beautiful little lady and as good as she is beautiful. But I think the least said the soonest mended, don't you? Mrs. Carpenter, you may know, was educated abroad, in England, France and Italy.

"I do not know where Mrs. Carpenter and her husband met, but I do know that they became engaged some time following the major's divorce last Summer.

"Yes, when they return from Maine, I expect they will live here on Freeman street. Mrs. Hoagland, Mrs. Carpenter's mother, will probably be back home the last of this week."

FIGHTS MOVE TO SET PICKFORD SUIT ASIDE

Brief Charges Every Divorce Granted in Nevada Would Be Open to Attack

By International News Service.

Minden, Nev., March 10.—For the courts of Nevada to permit the State Attorney-General to intervene to set aside the divorce granted to Mary Pickford, famous movie star, from Owen E. Moore would throw open to attack the thousands of divorces that have been granted in Nevada since that State became famous as a centre of divorces, according to the contentions of a brief filed here today by counsel for the "sweetheart of America."

The brief—a final one in the preliminary legal skirmish of the State's endeavor to annul the Pickford divorce—characterizes the right claimed by the Attorney-General of the State of Nevada to institute the proceedings as nothing more than "fictional," and asks the court to revoke the order of publication in the case brought by the State and to quash the summons served by such publication.

The divorce was granted by Presiding Judge Frank P. Langan of Douglas County nearly a year ago. At the time Miss Pickford filed the suit she was staying at a nearby ranch. Service was made on Moore when he came into Nevada on a "movie location" excursion.

Following the granting of the decree the screen star returned to California and later married Douglas Fairbanks. Attorney-General Leonard B. Fowler then instituted proceedings to have the decree annulled, alleging collusion and fraud.

"To permit the Attorney-General of the State to maintain and prosecute this action is to make it possible for him to make a similar attack upon every judgment heretofore rendered by the courts of the State of Nevada," declared the brief filed today.

'POCO' BENNETT CHARGES HEARD BY JURY

Alleged Attempted Bribery of Corcoran Brothers Probed in East Cambridge

More than a score of witnesses, including Chairman Brooks of the Parole Board, Frank and Charles Corcoran, two former Cambridge city employes, former Mayor Wariwell, and others, appeared in East Cambridge court today when the Grand Jury began an investigation of statements believed to have been made by Louis "Poco" Bennett, now serving a two and one-half-year sentence in the Cambridge jail for the part played in the holdup and robbery of the Lynn General Electric Company's paymaster in 1918.

Bennett's time is up in August, but some weeks ago he sent for Chairman Brook of the Parole Board, who visited the convict's cell with a stenographer, and took Bennett's statement.

Shortly after that Sheriff Fairbairn suspended Charles Corcoran, who had been night officer at the jail for ten years.

About the same time the Middlesex County Commission suspended Charles' brother, Frank, who had been a county employe for twenty-five years, and was at that time assistant superintendent of buildings.

Bennett is alleged to have told Brooks that the Corcoran brothers had received $1,000 from him on their premises to obtain his parole from jail. This money, it is alleged was returned, when the efforts of the brothers failed to obtain the pardon.

The grand jury's investigation is under the personal supervision of Nathan A. Tufts, district attorney of Middlesex County. The formal report on the matter is expected tomorrow afternoon.

IRISH WORKERS PERMITTED TO GO ANYWHERE

Special Consent Is Extended to American Committee for Relief by Military Authorities

The American Committee for Relief in Ireland is permitted to go anywhere in martial law area in that country, according to a copy of a cablegram received by James J. Phelan, chairman of the Massachusetts Committee for Relief in Ireland.

The cable stated that special military permits were issued by General Strickland on instructions from General Macready, which permit all of the committee to go anywhere with full understanding that they plan to extend immediate relief and aid in reconstructing damaged buildings in those areas as well as elsewhere.

Mason Mitchell, American consul, was said to have been present at the conference with General Strickland.

"As to statement by Bretherton that no distress exists, our report of seven million pounds national damage is based on information given us by crown officials who are in possession of information which Bretherton has ignored.

"Our estimate of unemployment also came from crown source, as well as from other sources, and it is noteworthy that the amount of unemployment is greater according to crown statistics than estimated by labor officials.

"We emphasize fact that no person in Ireland has interviewed so many authorities of all shades of opinion as we have. If Bretherton said what you quote him as saying he has deliberately ignored facts which any unbiased journalist can obtain and which are known to crown authorities.

"Your suggestion that America may extend no aid to reconstruction until peace is attained raises question of deep importance, so much so that we earnestly request Judge Campbell and McConnaughy to come to London or Dublin on first boat in order that we may get exact views of America on this subject, and impart to them full significance of this matter, as it has been impressed upon us by every element interested in both rehabilitation of Ireland and the consummation of peace. Only by such conference can real understanding of your viewpoint and the viewpoint here be obtained."

Cardinal Dougherty Receives Red Hat

Rome, March 10.—Pope Benedict today conferred the red hat upon Cardinal Dougherty of Philadelphia and the other prelates elevated to the cardinalate at the Vatican on Monday. Today's ceremony was performed at a public consistory, when the newly-created cardinals were blessed by the pontiff according to the ritual of the church.

After the public consistory, a secret consistory was held in the Sistine Chapel, when the symbolic ceremony was held of sealing the new cardinals' lips. The Pope presided at this rite.

PRESENT COAL RATES TO PREVAIL DURING SUMMER

New York, March 10.—There will be no Summer discount in anthracite coal prices, a representative of the Lehigh Coal & Navigation Company announced here today. The present rates will prevail until September 1, when those who have delayed ordering their next Winter's supply will have to pay an advanced price. It is claimed by the anthracite dealers that they cannot afford to lower prices.

"SAY IT WITH FLOUR" DRIVE MEETS SUCCESS

The "Say It With Flour" drive in Greater Boston, opened this week by the Near East Relief Committee, has met with such success that virtually every main pastor in a hotel or bank has purchased its first barrel of flour for the hungry children of the Near East. Dr. A. C. McCrea, who saw service in France, has been sent to Boston by the committee and will spend the month addressing students of colleges in Massachusetts.

PACKING HOUSE MEN MAY TAKE STRIKE VOTE

Omaha, Neb., March 10.—Representatives of 100,000 workers in packing houses throughout the United States today are proceeding with plans for the taking of a strike vote. Only intervention by President Harding in the dispute between packing house workers and the packers' union, leaders declare, can prevent the taking of a strike referendum.

A HOME-MADE GRAY HAIR REMEDY

You Can Make a Better Gray Hair Remedy Than You Can Buy.

Gray, streaked or faded hair is not only unbecoming, but unnecessary.

Anyone can prepare a simple mixture at home that will darken gray hair and make it soft and glossy. To a half-pint of water add 1 ounce of bay rum, a small box of Barbo Compound and ¼ ounce of glycerine.

These ingredients can be bought at any drug store at very little cost, or the druggist will put it up for you. Apply to the hair twice a week until the desired shade is obtained. This will make a gray-haired person look twenty years younger. It is easy to use, does not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy and does not rub off.—Advertisement.

ALL BACK PICTURES IN MOVIE TEST TO BE PRINTED SUNDAY

The Title Test Editor is pleased to announce another printing of Back Pictures in the Movie Play Title Test.

The fifteenth picture, and ALL BACK PICTURES, will be printed in next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Readers who are eager to start now in the Test, as well as those who have been in from the beginning, will be pleased by this announcement. With next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser you will receive fifteen of the sixty pictures which constitute the Test. The beginner will be able to step into the Test on equal terms with other participants.

In connection with Sunday's reprints, however, the Title Test Editor feels that he should write a word or two of caution. Reprints inevitably will be considerably smaller than the original printing. "Old timers" in the Test will do well to place their reliance upon the regular picture as it appears every day.

This does not mean that reprints will not be acceptable at the close of the Test. They will be worth exactly as much, in the distribution of Awards, as the regular or large pictures. The meaning of our "caution" should be perfectly clear: Get the big pictures in regular daily orders and you will not have to depend upon reprints.

Whether you are about to start in the $5,000 Test or have been in since a week ago last Sunday, be sure to place an early order for next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser. At this "easy" stage of the Test, the smaller pictures may serve as well as larger ones. They also will serve as "substitutes" in case you have changed your mind about a title or two.

For the benefit of new acquaintances who may be wondering what all this can be about, let us explain:

The Boston American, in association with the Boston Sunday Advertiser, is about to distribute $5,000 in 219 awards to readers who qualify as title writers.

The plan is to print 60 pictures, each WITHOUT A TITLE. Readers of the associated newspapers are invited to WRITE THE MISSING TITLES.

Each of 60 Test Pictures will represent the TITLE of a motion picture play which has been produced in the United States.

The titles you are to write, therefore, are the titles of motion picture plays.

"But there are so many motion picture plays," says the newcomer, "how is one to know?"

One Test Picture is printed every day, on week days in the Boston American and on Sundays in the Boston Sunday Advertiser. AT THE SAME TIME A LIST OF TITLES IS PRINTED, IN THIS LIST IS THE CORRECT TITLE OF THE TEST PICTURE. ALL YOU HAVE TO DO IS TURN FROM THE TEST PICTURE TO THE LIST OF TITLES PRINTED RIGHT ONE! AND—FIND THE RIGHT ONE!

Today's Title Test Picture, No. 12, will be found upon the Picture Page. You will observe below it a List of Titles. Among these Titles is the CORRECT title of Test Picture No. 12. It will not be difficult to decide WHICH is the correct title. ONE title in the list fits No. 12 so snugly that, once you have come upon it, you will know that your search is over. Every day the same course is followed. First, the Test Picture; then, the List of Titles.

At the end of the sixty-day Test participants will be asked to send in their titles and, when the judges have completed their work, the following awards will be paid IN CASH:

ONE FIRST AWARD	$1,000
ONE SECOND AWARD	750
ONE THIRD AWARD	500
ONE FOURTH AWARD	400
ONE FIFTH AWARD	300
ONE SIXTH AWARD	200
ONE SEVENTH AWARD	150
ONE EIGHTH AWARD	100
ONE NINTH AWARD	50
100 AWARDS OF $10 EACH	1,000
110 AWARDS OF $5 EACH	550
TOTAL	$5,000

Three participants have written 10 of the Title Test Editor to call his attention to an error in the introduction to the List of Co-operating Theatres in last Monday's Boston American.

On Monday we re-printed Test Picture No. 1 to 5 and also printed a List of Titles in connection with the first seven pictures.

More than once, on Monday's Title Test Page, emphasis was placed upon the fact that the titles of Nos. 6 and 8 would be found on the Picture Page, in the List of Titles for the present week.

In one place, however, the types were made to say this:

On this page are not only all the Back Pictures necessary, if you desire to step into this $5,000 Test on even terms with all who began one week ago yesterday, but a List of Titles which includes the titles of all but one of the pictures. The title to that picture (No. 5) is on the Picture Page.

The number in parenthesis should have been "4."

In days of old, an editor in similar circumstances would have said "typographical mistake." The present writer prefers to believe that his typewriting slipped. He not only assumes responsibility for the above "bull" but, in order that nobody shall be led into error by it, he is going to say, right out in meeting, that the correct title of Test Picture No. 5 is "It's a Bear."

H. L. D., Boston.—The above answers your inquiry. Thank you.

Franklin (N. H.) Friend.—Also yours. And thank YOU.

Annie Yonis, Boston.—Titles are not to be sent in before the end of the Test. WHY don't you read the Rules?

"Nutty."—Hold your horses, the elephants are coming.

Anthon Mary Louise, Worcester.—Name the theatre of your choice. Name NO theatre, if that is your preference. We want to boost the theatres. Imagine the U. S. A. today without a movie house!

M. E. K., Providence.—You ask me if the titles you have written for the first eight pictures are "all right." I am not permitted to anticipate the work of the judges. If I answer your question, why should I decline to tell Sam Smith whether HE is O. K. on the second eight, give Henry St. Pierre the "go ahead" signal on the third eight, and so on? It hurts like thunder to have to write this. Why pick on a tender-hearted old sport? Keep up the good work!

Constant Reader, North Abington.—All right as to the lead pencil. Make it soft lead and be happy.

G. L. N., Clifford street, New Bedford.—Yours is the second suggestion of that kind. Will see what can be done about it. Meanwhile, speak to the dealer or have a look before you buy. Thank you.

Frankie M., Natick.—If you follow the example in the List of Titles you cannot go wrong. That is what I should do.

The Director in charge of Movie PLAYER IDENTITY Headquarters drops in as we are about to slide to press. "What news?" we ask, and his answer is:

TELL EVERYBODY THAT THE WORK OF CHECKING IDENTIFICATIONS BEGAN THIS MORNING.

Participants in the Movie Title Test are again reminded that next Sunday's Boston Sunday Advertiser will contain ALL Test Pictures from No. 1 to No. 15, inclusive.

Misses' Easter Suits
Special 55.00
Made to Sell as High as 75.00

SMART, youthful, individual suits that show the salient features of Spring—graceful cape coats, box coats, blo used coats and strictly tailored coats. They are mostly in navy blue of the favorite Spring materials—tricotine, twill cord, serge, Poiret twill and a few shepherd checks.

The trimmings make for individua lity and charm. Wait till you see the novel and interesting ways in which br aid, embroidery, satin and taffeta have been used.

The suits are all silk lined. They show that perfection of tailoring which you only find in higher priced suits—hand embroidered arrow points, hand shaped collars, hand piped buttonholes. Every one of them is man tailored throughout. And, best of all, they are exclusive Spring styles!

NAVY BLUE SUITS

Women's braid-bound suits, $55

They have all the distinction of well-tailored braid-bound suits, with the added attraction of rounded lapels, and cleverly cut jacket with the front shorter than the back (quite a few of the new suits have this idea). $55.

Misses' straight-line tricotine suits, $45

Flat, perpendicular tucks that look like straps of the material, emphasize the straight, youthful lines of this fine-weave tricotine suit. The long collar ends at the waist-line, and the link-fastening completes the effect of straight-line smartness. $45.

N. B.—$35, $45 and $55 are the season's three big prices. 65 styles for women; 62 styles for misses; from $35 to $55.

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Salts and Get Rid of Uric Acid

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions, it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid which is generated in the bowels and absorbed into the blood. It is the function of the kidneys to filter this acid from the blood and cast it out in the urine; the pores of the skin are also a means of freeing the blood of this impurity. In damp and chilly, cold weather the skin pores are closed thus forcing the kidneys to do double work, they become weak and sluggish and fail to eliminate this uric acid which keeps accumulating and circulating through the system, eventually settling in the joints and muscles causing stiffness, soreness and pain called rheumatism.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to eliminate uric acid by stimulating the kidneys to normal action, thus ridding the blood of these impurities.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and is used with excellent results by thousands of folks who are subject to rheumatism.—Advertisement.

WOMAN ADMITS THEFTS IN 7 STORES

Lawrence Police Believe $200 Seized in Lodging House Part of Loot

Lawrence, March 10.—Articles valued at $200, seized by the local police in an Essex street lodging house, are believed to be a part of shoplifting booty from local stores.

Alice Patriquin, thirty-five years old, of Chesterville, Me., was later arrested by Inspectors Michael Hyon and Daniel J. Dwyer. She admitted having committed thefts from at least seven Lawrence stores.

A floorwalker in a large store noted the woman's actions in his store and phoned the police. The woman was watched and was later taken to the police station, protesting her innocence. A number of unwrapped articles were found on her person when she was searched.

She made a complete confession of the thefts, the police said, in presenting the case for prosecution in the District Court before Judge J. J. Lane and three department stores. Store heads have identified the goods.

PICTURE NEWS MOTION

Who's Your Favorite Movie Star? Is It Robert Bean, or Ethel Blum, or Olga Cronk?

When Owen Moore was in London recently he took care to "watch his step" whenever the lady-bobby looked his way

WE SELDOM believe a chorus girl's name. When the program says that Heloise Halliday and Myrtle Melville are in the chorus of such and such a revue we wonder, if we stop to think of it at all, what her real name is.

Among the screen players there is the same practice, but instead of going in for the gay, fairy-story sort of names, they take on others, equally human and everyday as their own. Sometimes there's a reason for this and sometimes there isn't.

Samuel Goldwyn, quite naturally, prefers that name to his real one, Samuel Goldfish. Several years ago he started a partnership in the movies with Edgar Selwyn, the theatrical producer and playwright. Together they built up one of the largest corporations in the industry. In naming the concern they took half of the name of each, Goldwyn. Then, when Selwyn went back to his theatrical interests, Goldwyn kept the name and had it legalized.

How many would recognize Robert Bean, the star? No one, but call him by his other name, Robert Warwick, and watch everybody smile. Ethel Clayton, too, is one of our best-known stars, but at home she was always known as Ethel Blum, that is, until she married Joseph Kaufman, the director who died of pneumonia several years ago.

Then there's Olga Cronk. Lois Weber told her she wouldn't have any chance whatever in pictures if she kept that name, so she changed it and became Claire Windsor, one of Miss Weber's stars, and doesn't look as if she had ever heard the name "Cronk."

Lila Lee they call her wherever films are shown, but in Chicago a few years ago they called her "Susie" Appel, although her real name was Augusta, and on the vaudeville stage she was known as "Cuddles." Louise Carbasse worked as an "extra" in Los Angeles for some time and no one paid any attention to her name, but as she showed signs of talent they looked it up and said it wouldn't do at all. Watching her act one day the producer said, "Cee, she's lovely!" And now Louise Lovely is one of the favorites.

ANOTHER SCREEN FAMILY.

THE PICKFORDS and Talmadges are no longer the only ones to make the movies more or less of a family affair, for now the MacDonalds have brought their number up to three.

First Mary MacLaren came out of the Winter Garden chorus to star in pictures, then she was used for a broken contract by a western picture concern and her sister, who had, so they explained, the business head of the family, went out to straighten matters.

When the producers and directors saw her, they fished out another contract and signed her right up. Now who doesn't know Katherine MacDonald? She made good playing leads opposite Bill Hart, then as a featured player and later as a star, and is today at the head of her own producing company.

Now Miriam MacDonald, younger sister of the two stars, had decided to carve out a career of her own in films. She has played small parts in pictures with both her sisters, but will play with other stars and companies now. She will specialize in character work, rather than in "straight" parts or leads.

BEST FILMS OF 1926.

WHAT were the best moving pictures you saw in 1926?

The movies are now in the same class as football and short stories. Each year the best eleven football players are chosen for an All-American team by such an expert as Walter Camp, and each year the best short stories published in the magazines are chosen by Edward O'Brien.

The National Board of Reviews in New York chooses yearly the best twenty films out of the 500 or more that are released. This board passes upon all productions and grants or withholds its approval and no films can be released without being passed by them.

Here's their list. Do you agree with it?

"Humoresque," "Mark of Zorro," "Devil's Garden," "Last of the Mohicans," "Sin That Was His," "Girl of My Heart," "Way Down East," "Godless Men," "Leopard Woman," "Over the Hill," "Passion," "Deep Waters," "Homespun Folks," "Earthbound," "If I Were King," "Jack Knife Man," "Something to Think About," "Conrad in Quest of His Youth," "Soul of Youth," "The Great Redeemer."

LONG DISTANCE WEDDING PARTY.

THOUGH ELINOR GLYN will have to star in Hollywood for some weeks while she is working on the production of her first scenario, "The Great Moment," with Gloria Swanson, and her daughter is in England and will be married very soon at St. Margaret's, in London, Mrs. Glyn will pay the wedding.

Jesse Lasky, head of the Famous Players-Lasky corporation, gave out word that camera-man should photograph the entire wedding and the reception afterward and hurry the film to this country that Mrs. Glyn might see her daughter married.

"Is there anything the movies can't do?" she gasped, when they told her about it.

FROM THE FIJI ISLANDS.

A BELATED valentine came to Universal City the other day for Edith Roberts from an American stationed in the Fiji Islands. The letter with the valentine said that Miss Roberts' picture, "The Adorable Savage," had just been shown in Suva, the chief port of the Islands, and that the illustrations, "how to be adorable though savage," had won the entire place.

The valentine is in the form of a coral necklace, gathered, polished and strung by her fans in the South Seas.

CAMERA CLICKS.

EVAN BURROWS FONTAINE, the dancer, who by the way is coming to Boston next week in "Madonnas and Men," has just arrived in New York to consult with her attorney regarding the denial of Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, of Lenox, Mass., and New York, of their reported marriage.

H. M. MILCREST, a player with Mr. Marshall Neilan's company, was trampled to death by a horse while he was on vacation in Arizona.

BILLIE RHODES, one-time movie star, has just been married to William Joberman, a Los Angeles writer. Her first husband was "Smiling Bill" Parsons, the slapstick comedian.

INCOME TAX RETURN WARNING IS ISSUED

Those who fail to file their income tax reports before the last day, March 15, will be required to pay a fine of 5% plus 2% per cent. of their tax, in addition to their regular tax, and they will not be allowed to make their payments in installments, according to a communication from Tax Commissioner John J. Mitchell. Last year more than 6,000 failed to get their returns in on time. All of them paid the penalty.

SCANDINAVIAN LINER HELD FOR DELOUSING

The Scandinavian-American liner, Hellig Olav, diverted from New York to Boston by wireless orders, arrived early today and is being held in quarantine while her steerage passengers are undergoing the delousing process at Gallops Island, a number of them having been found to be infested with vermin. The ship brought 30 saloon, 358 second cabin and 431 steerage passengers from Copenhagen and Christiania. Among the saloon passengers were Mrs. Julia Lodd and her daughter, Mary, of Fitchburg.

All Mothers Will Find Use For This Laxative

Give Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin to a constipated child and note its quick recovery.

IN a growing family the subject of thought with the parents is how to keep the children healthy and happy, and what to do when they become ill. Most illnesses of childhood are the symptoms of constipation, such as headaches, coated tongues, flatulence, dizziness, loss of appetite and sleep, billousness, etc.

You can surely feel safe in doing what tens of thousands of others do with good results, so give, according to the age of the child, a small quantity of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Eight million bottles were bought last year at drug stores. It is America's favorite family remedy for constipation, indigestion and similar ills, and is especially suitable for children, women and old folks as it is so mild and gentle in action.

There is no secret about Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It is a combination of Egyptian Senna and other simple laxative herbs with pepsin and pleasant tasting aromatics. Druggists have sold it for thirty years, and a sixty cent bottle will last for months. Experienced mothers are never without it in the house.

RAILROAD PLANS TO CUT DOWN OFFICE HELP

New York Central Reported to Lead in New Move to Lower Payrolls

By International News Service.

New York, March 10.—The New York Central, it was reported early today, will follow the lead of the Pennsylvania Railroad by announcing a drastic program of retrenchment. The New York Central already has given notice of a wage reduction to its unskilled labor. This reduction is to take effect April 1.

It is now prepared, it was reported, to announce further reductions by which $500,000 more will be removed from its monthly payrolls.

Office employes from the highest executives to office boys will be affected by the new cuts. Railroad officials conversant with the situation throughout the country declared today that practically every railroad in the country is preparing drastic cuts in operating expenses.

They said the situation was such that the railroads simply have to take action to counteract the drop in revenues due to a slump in business that followed the inauguration of higher rates.

Already several of the principal roads have held conferences with representatives of their employes at which the roads presented schedules calling for reduced wages in each case the employes' representatives took the announced reductions under advisement.

There has been some talk of strikes, but railroad officials believe the wage reductions will be accepted.

TOGET TITLE

DR. CHARLES E. SAWYER.

Washington, March 10.—Dr. Charles E. Sawyer of Marion, O., new White House physician, will get his title of brigadier-general despite his sixty-two years.

President Harding has sent the nomination to the Senate, and it has been referred to the military affairs committee. It is practically certain he will be confirmed.

The only objection raised to Sawyer's appointment as brigadier-general was that he was sixty-two, two years beyond the age limit for such appointment. The Department of Justice ruled that America was still at war, and the limitation did not apply.

Dr. Sawyer is known among medical men as a progressive and able practitioner. President Harding has high regard for him.

As White House doctor, he succeeds Carry T. Grayson. President Wilson's physician, who ranked as a rear admiral during his incumbency.

ARTIST TARTOUE DENIES DRIVING WIFE AWAY

Says He Did Not Threaten to Disfigure Her in Answer to Separation Suit

New York, March 10.—Pierre Tartoue, noted painter of portraits of society people, through his attorneys, has filed his answer to the suit for separation brought by his wife Claudia W. Tartoue, and among other things he denied the following:

That he used vile language to his wife or in her presence.

That he insulted or humiliated her.

That he attached or abused her.

That he had threatened to kill or disfigure her with vitriol.

That he had driven her from their home.

All of the above accusations had been made against the artist by Mrs. Tartoue in her action bill of complaint.

Tartoue deposes that on or about December 10, 1920, his wife left his home and abandoned him. They had been married on October 14, 1918.

The answer goes on to state that Mrs. Tartoue had been married twice previously with no party having obtained a divorce.

Boston Notables Work for Wilson Fund

Mrs. Malcolm Forbes, Franklin W. Cutcheon and John F. Moors of Boston are engaged actively in a nation-wide project to raise a $500,000 fund as a tribute to Woodrow Wilson.

Interest on the fund, contributed in small amounts, will be devoted to rewarding the one who, during the year, has done the greatest service to humanity. The nature of this service is to be defined by Mr. Wilson, who has expressed himself as deeply appreciative of the honor paid him.

The idea, which originated with women admirers of the former president, was taken up at a meeting in the Hotel Biltmore, New York.

A preliminary committee was formed, including Mrs. Charles Tiffany and George Foster Peabody, two of the most enthusiastic supporters of the project.

Vose Small Grand

It expresses the Vose ideal of the perfect piano—Built to meet the exacting requirements of its makers, it is presented to the public only after the House of Vose has declared it perfect.

A piano should last for generations. It should, with proper care, ripen in tone with age. There are Vose pianos bought generations ago that are still giving satisfaction.

Many small Grands look alike. It is what you cannot see that determines their quality. When you hear the wonderful Vose tone, remember, it has taken nearly three quarters of a century of quality piano making to produce it.

This model is for the music or living room of limited floor space. It gives the artistic touch to the home.....TERMS

CLOTH SWINDLERS ARE OPERATING AT HARVARD

Harvard students are being warned against cloth swindlers. The Crimson urges the undergraduates to look out for two men making tours of the dormitories and using fictitious names in making contracts with students. One man is stout and the other gray-haired. They claim to be representatives of foreign tailors of high-grade cloth. In reality the cloth is not worth half the purchasing price, declares the Crimson. Yearly, students lose money in this way.

HAPGOOD HAILS NEW PLAN TO TAKE OVER ROADS

By NORMAN HAPGOOD,
Editorial Correspondent of Boston American.

Washington, March 10.—Within a very short time Herbert Hoover will probably be named Director-General of Railroads. Of course this will be in addition to his work as Secretary of Commerce. Judge Payne has been holding over for a little while.

Norman Hapgood

If Mr. Hoover is appointed, as it is believed on the Railroad Commission that he is to be, he will take over the work at a time when the duties of the office are likely to be enormously increased within a few months. There are railroad officials in town now looking for some drastic change to save their properties, and most of their plans provide for some sort of government control, as one of the measures that might enable them to stop short of government ownership.

Senator Cummins, the foremost authority in Congress on railroad matters, is working on certain ameliorative measures, but is generally credited with the opinion that government ownership is not far off.

A plan for taking over the railroads without compulsion is being worked out here by a railroad expert known all over the United States. On account of the significant position which he now holds his work has to be done quietly, but it is being done with the help of members of the Interstate Commerce Commission and the co-operation of members of the Senate and the House of Representatives. A bill to further the plan will be introduced at the forthcoming session.

The plan is in substance the formation of a United States Railroad Corporation, the function of which will be to take over the bonds or stocks of any railroads, or any part of such bonds and stock that the holders may wish to sell and keep on receiving such voluntarily sold securities until the whole private system has passed into the hands of this corporation without litigation and without dispute about constitutionality or about amount of compensation.

The bonds of the railroad companies amounted in 1918 to approximately $16,848,744,017. The stock amounted to $8,893,840,967, of which a little over five billions were dividend paying. The greater part of the bonds are in the hands of insurance companies, trust estates, colleges and all kinds of fundamental institutions. The average interest rate is around 4½ per cent. A large part of them are very low bonds, issued when money was very cheap. There are some at 3 and 3½ and many at four.

The rate at which the money thus went into the roads is so low that Senator Cummins says he does not think are over a hundred millions that ought not to be taken care of, according to their terms. If they were taken over, and in a lot of over ten billions and a half one hundred millions do not figure much. Many of them are long-time bonds, running up to forty years.

"According to various backers of the plan, nothing would be more foolish than to put through any legislation taking over the roads under the right of eminent domain, as that would be likely to mean paying for the securities at par, whereas under this arrangement for voluntary transfer they would come over at their market value, or even less, on account of the greater certainty of returns. A stabilized return would immediately mean a greater market value.

While the control of the whole railroad system would be centralized and competition done away with there would be decentralized operation. The units into which the roads would be grouped would be managerial in their nature, whereas the present units are financial in their nature. The fundamental argument back of the new bill will be that there is as much reason for having railway service at cost as there is for having postal service at cost. The success of such a bonding company solution would eliminate every railroad receiver, would leave almost except the managers of the few company. These few men would have only hard working jobs and far as I can see, of living a life but would become obsolete.

The directors in the corporation are to be as follows:

Five chosen by security holders.

Five representing the public and prohibited from having any interest like the present Interstate Commerce commissioners.

Nine representing capital, representing the stockholders.

Some of the plan would be given a second look in 7 per cent might be permitted. There might be an arrangement by which excess profits would go to the railroads.

When Congress meets next month the railroad question will be one of the most important to be settled.

TRY MAGNESIA FOR STOMACH TROUBLE

Advertisement.

It Neutralizes Stomach Acidity, Prevents Food Fermentation, Sour, Gassy Stomach and Acid Indigestion

Doubtless if you are a sufferer from indigestion, you have already tried pepsin, pancreatin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and you know these things will not cure your trouble—in some cases do not even give relief.

But before giving up hope are deciding you are a chronic dyspeptic just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia not the ordinary commercial carbonate of magnesia or milk but the pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powdered or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or two compressed tablets with a little water after your heat meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the blues or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat.

You will find that provided you take a little Bisurated Magnesia immediately after a meal, you can eat almost anything and enjoy it without any danger of pain or discomfort to follow and moreover the continued use of the bisurated magnesia cannot injure the stomach in any way so long as there are any symptoms of acid indigestion.

Cocoanut Oil Fine For Washing Hair

If you want to keep your hair in good condition, be careful what you wash it with.

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali. This dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle, and is very harmful. Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo (which is pure and entirely greaseless) is much better than anything else you can use for shampooing, as this can't possibly injure the hair.

Simply moisten your hair with water and rub it in. One or two teaspoonfuls of Mulsified will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather, and cleanses the hair and scalp thoroughly. The lather rinses out easily, and removes every particle of dust, dirt, dandruff and excessive oil. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is left fine and silky, bright, fluffy, and easy to manage.

You can get Mulsified cocoanut oil shampoo at most any drug store. It is very cheap and a few ounces is enough to last everyone in the family for months.

Be sure your druggist gives you Mulsified.—Advertisement.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, March 10.—Business was very light at the opening of the cotton market and first prices showed net losses of 5 to 9 points in a small way spot houses and the South sold, while local traders and Wall street wanted cables were heavy reflecting continued and unfavorable conditions in Great Britain. After the start prices were well sustained by a little support from room sources and at the end of fifteen minutes were about four points net lower. Opening prices were: March, 11.46 to 11.50; May, 11.71 to 11.77; July, 12.07; August, 12.01; October, 15.00; December, 13.16 to 13.20; January, 13.20 to 13.25.

BEARS ATTACK THE BEST RAILS

Many Carriers Sell at the Lowest Prices for the Year to Date

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York at noon, with rails the feature. A score or more of [illegible] were at new low levels for the year. [illegible] Southern T & SF [illegible] reduced rates. They were the most active [illegible].

Among sales to establish new lows were Atchison, Canadian Pacific, New York Central, New Haven, Northern Pacific, Great Northern preferred, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific, Pennsylvania and Reading.

Among oils and industrials to sell at lows were Pullman, Sinclair, Industrial Alcohol, Sears, Goodrich and Cerro De Pasco. Morning losses ranged from fractions to more than two points. Most of the trading was in rails. Coppers and oils weakened in the second hour.

Call money opened at 7 per cent. Foreign exchange rates advanced demand sterling opening at cents higher at $3 [illegible]. The stock market was active, first hour transactions aggregating nearly 500,000 shares.

EASIER OFF AT START.

An easing off process marked the opening, but initial losses were as small as general bears resumed their attack against rails. Pressure was intense in that quarter feeble. Reports of earnings this year have been disheartening to interests which believed that high freight and passenger rates would enable carriers to make a small profit. Industrial corporations have been cutting or passing dividends. New holders of rail securities are worrying. At the end of thirty minutes there was the rails that usually come first at this time in a weak professional market. A few issues got definite opening quotations but the market as a whole remained below them. First hour declines ranged from fractions to more than a point. A number of specialties receded. Baldwin was the weakest of the list. Oils had a firmer tone, steels were lower as a case, coppers were irregular and sugars and tobaccos were [illegible] transactions. The list ruled above the lowest by mid-morning.

TRADERS IN DOUBT.

Traders at present are almost entirely of the professional class and while more conservative as to commitments are taking a bearish view of the market as at any time this year. But important interests have been ordering quiet support to stocks in which they are interested and this policy has prevented any general decline of consequence. Traders are waiting and watching for an opportunity to make a breach that will personally affect the whole list. Uncertainty attaches in causing more and more uneasiness. Opinions differ as to the advisability of the invasion of Germany by allied troops, but it is generally favored by financial circles as the best policy to pursue in a dilemma. It is diminishing hope, however, of ascertaining a present the market for American commodities and goods in Europe. There is fear of protracted business stagnation at home and abroad.

FUTURE RING CHAMPIONS PERFORM AT BIG AMATEUR SHOW

4 CLASSES ON CARD OF BOUTS

St. Phillips A. A. Plans Busy Night for Pures—One Special Also

By JACK CONWAY.

The amateur boxers will occupy the centre of the pugilistic stage to night when the St. Phillips A. A. holds a show at Scenic Temple. The offering this p. m. is better than any which has been made this Winter by the popular South End organization.

There will be matches at 108, 115 126 and 145 pounds. There will also be a special tussle between Young Mike O'Dowd and Henry Ford. These boys are old rivals and should furnish a lively engagement.

The officers of the St. Phillips A. A announce that tonight's show will be open to the public. Reservations may be secured at Scenic Temple.

Madden and Perry in Battle at Lynn

Freddy Madden, East Boston's sturdy bantamweight entry, will have Jack Perry of Philadelphia as an opponent in a ten-round bout at the Casino A. N of Lynn tonight. Madden takes the place of Harry Poulin of Buffalo who was obliged to withdraw on account of illness. Matchmaker Jack Murphy was mighty fortunate in being able to secure the services of Madden as the latter is one of the best of our bantam entries. In his last start at Lynn, Madden disposed of Red Chapman of Chelsea.

Perry recently showed his class when he gave Paul Demers a hard battle of 8 Fall River. Last Saturday night, Philadelphia he fought a terri engagement with Kid Willoby.

Joe Flanagan of Malden will a Joe Stone of Quincy as an opent in the semi-final of eight unds.

Tillo and Carney on at Commonwealth A. A.

The Commonwealth A. A. is doing a lot to keep up interest in the boxing game hereabouts by staging two shows a week during the lull in the fistic game caused by the inability of the Mechanics Building Matchmaker Tom Goodwin has another bang-up attraction billed for Saturday night. Three ten-round matches and a six-session affair will be the offering.

The feature whirl of ten rounds will bring together Billy Carney of New Bedford and Frank Tillo of the North End. Both of these boys have been traveling at a lively clip. Carney has scored victories over Shaver O'Brien and Mickey Donovan in his last two starts, while Tillo polished off Greek Aligiz in the latter's other night.

Tillo has added a little aggressiveness to his fighting qualities which makes him a mighty difficult man to defeat. The North Ender packs a winning punch and all he needs to gain a place in the front ranks of the welterweight class is a little more aggressiveness. He showed plenty of this qualification against Algar.

The semi-final of ten rounds will bring together Johnny Noonan of Dorchester and Johnny Buckley of South Boston. These boys fought ten hard rounds at the Elks' benefit, Buckley winning a questionable decision.

Commission Expected to Oppose 2-Show Plan

The Boxing Commission announces that at its meeting this afternoon it will consider the question of permitting one club to stage two shows a week. It is believed the commission will decide that it will allow the same organization to operate twice a week, when by so doing it is not conflicting with any other club. It would be ridiculous to prevent a club, which has its own quarters from staging two shows a week when the game can be benefitted by such a move. The commission is in close touch with the game in Massachusetts and will undoubtedly make the proper judicial ruling.

Stork is to Blame for Shaver's Defeat

Waiting up nights for an expected arrival of the stork at his home in South Boston didn't do Shaver O'Brien any good in his tussle with Jack Thomas, Canadian welterweight champion. O'Brien was unable to give proper attention to his training, while he has not had regular sleep for ten days. When O'Brien entered the ring against Thomas, he was five pounds heavier than when he made his great bout against Harry Rice. When things are normal at his home once more, O'Brien says he will get himself fit and give Jack a return bout with the Canadian title holder.

Thomas Can Have Action if He Is Ambitious

Charley (K. O.) Miller of the South End is another youth who would like to pin a keys smash on Thomas' jaw. Miller saw Thomas perform in his Boston debut and is not the least bit bashful in stating that he would be able to dispose of the warrior from across the border. Miller would give Thomas a real test.

DICK RUDOLPH BUSY BEE AT GALVESTON

Practice Games Already Started At Braves Camp; O'Neil and Gowdy Captains

By NICK FLATLEY

Galveston, Texas, March 10—Times have surely changed for the Braves. Little Richard Rudolph is working hard to get himself into shape. Small Dick toiling unduly in the Spring of the year shows the dawn of a new era sure enough. Other years the tiny master of the mound let himself drift along lazily and got into shape usually the first few games he pitched.

He found he couldn't do that last season, the old scouper, as they call the arm in baseball circles, wouldn't respond. As a result, Richard sat on the bench practically all year. The star who was didn't fit into the picture at all.

This season he has resolved to come back. He's at the field early, going through all the prescribed stunts with as much sincerity as the rawest of the rookies. And a few of them are exceedingly underdone, judging by first impressions.

Tried Out Everything on First Day

On his first appearance, Rudy waltzed around the field with the others, tried out the wing, talked the old army days and was everything like that. He was back for more of the same done today and by the time the season swings around will be in butter physical fettle for a start that he has been into those far-off days, when he was carving out a reputation up in Toronto.

Rudolph reached up all Winter, and hasn't felt any of the shoulder twinges that disturbed his serenity last Summer. Of course, he's not a grudge to settle or addition to getting a chance to meet Pinky Gardner at a later date.

Tommy Heeford and Judge K lina are in Houston to-day to see Jimmy Williams and the Pine Limbaches.

Bumped into Busy Day for Starter

The small master bumped into a very busy day for a beginner. The sun was shining brightly, and the pace was so swift that the players didn't have time to let the strong norther that visited here stiffen their muscles. Scrub games, with Henneys Gowdy and Mickey O'Neil as captains have been started. The batters are allowed to hit, and then made to run them out.

Manager Mitchell intends that there shall be no short-winded birds on his ball clubs, and he makes a point to see that every Thomas, Richard and Henry gets his full share of toil. He's a demon for daily arm feeds and spends hours showing the new pitchers how to hood the ball to cover up on their delivery. How to keep base runners clinging to the mattresses, and such little things. He believes that if the pitchers are schooled thoroughly in the fundamentals, they pick up the frills quickly.

Carelessness in Box Lost Many Games

Carelessness in the box and ignorance of the fine points of pitching lose more games than poor hurling. The manager, having been both a catcher and a pitcher in his days in the big leagues, knows the ins and outs of battery work and doesn't begrudge the time it takes to impart his knowledge to the beginners.

ED BAILEY TO LEAD MIDDLESEX SEVEN

Edward H. Bailey of Arlington has been elected to lead the Middlesex hockey team next season. Morley Monroe of Melrose is to be manager.

SPORT EDITORIAL

A Word to Amateur Boxers

Amateur boxers who made good showings in the recent tournaments are being pestered by professional managers to turn "pro."

A word to these young men.

There is a big difference between the amateur and professional game. One is a sport, the other a business.

The professional pugilistic road is a long, hard road. A few fighters make big money, but the majority remain "pork and beaners," the term indicating the fare upon which they subsist.

Not one in fifty amateurs, however formidable he may appear against other amateurs, is qualified for the professional game. The classiest looking amateur may turn out to be a mere third or fourth-rate professional, and there is no harder lot than that of the pugilist several notches below the front rank.

The idea of amateur boxing is not to develop professionals, and the professional managers themselves should be the first to discourage attempts to recruit "pros" from the amateurs.

Amateur boxing is designed to teach young men the art of self-defence, and to develop them physically. It is no part of the amateur game to manufacture professional fighters.

If the amateur with a hankering to turn "pro" desires some real advice on the subject let him consult, not a manager, but some veteran fighter who has been through the professional mill.

We doubt if one out of twenty professionals will advise the amateur to become a professional, unless it happens that the amateur is a veritable genius at the game.

Ketonen Anxious to Dispose of Ajax

Waino Ketonen and Tony Ajax will step on the mat at the Grand Opera House tonight primed for as wicked and hard a mat battle as Boston has ever seen. Both wrestlers have more at stake than the mere winning of the battle tonight as each has a grudge to settle in addition to getting a chance to meet Pinky Gardner at a later date.

Tommy Heeford and Judge K lina are in Houston to-day to see Jimmy Williams and the Pine Limbaches.

LEADERS MAINTAIN ONE-LAP ADVANTAGE

New York, March 10—The Egan-Van Kemper and Hall-Lyons team had maintained their one lap advantage at the end of the seventy-second hour of racing at Madison Square Garden but were more than 20 laps behind the record that the two teams set and upheld in 1914. The leaders covered 1,264 miles, one mile more than the record. Five teams started one lap behind the leaders were two laps in the rear and three, three laps, while the Dutch Kuhn team brought up the rear with 1,244 miles flat.

Lou Mike O'Dowd and the other great fighters of recent years. Tex Duffys are aggressive two hard ed warriors. They are fighting the boys every second they are in the ring with the hope of bang ing over a kayo smash.

The couple has aroused a great deal of interest and is expected to be witnessed by a big crowd.

LATIN OFF TO LEAD IN MEET WITH ENGLISH HIGH

Boston Latin got away to a five point lead over English High in the dual track and field meet now being conducted in the East Armory, capturing the running events, 42 to 38. English, however is particularly strongly represented in the field events and is being favored to capture the meet.

COAST CITY IN MOOD TO RUN BIG GAMES

Los Angeles Making Strong Effort for the Olympic Meet in 1924

Los Angeles is making a strong bid for the Olympic games of 1924 and making an offer which would solve the big problem of all Olympic meets.

The Southern California metropolis offers to pay all the expenses of the competing athletes if awarded the meet.

Los Angeles, of course is off the athletic map as far as the athletic centre of population goes, but it does cash in often a big per cent to American athletes as well as to those of foreign countries.

An Olympic meet on the Pacific coast would be a fine thing for the country as well as for sports.

It would cause tens of thousands of Americans to make a journey across their own country and it would give European athletes an opportunity of seeing the big cities and some of the wonders of the United States.

The additional miles would not drive away the European competitors and the chances are it would add to the Oriental interest in all games.

Japan, Hawaii, China and Australia would feel much more interested if the world is a meet to be held in the East.

CARLYLE CLUB TO STAGE STRONG CARD

A strong card is scheduled to take place at the Grand Opera House next Monday night under the auspices of the Carlyle club. Three tensome bouts and an eight round main go is the offering.

Battling Keenan of Hyde Park, a resident of Jamaica Plain, and Y and Hal Reed of Providence will open in the final ten rounder.

Another ten-rounder that should supply the fans with plenty of action is the one between Jimmy Griffin of Everett and Jack Murphy of Dorchester.

Mike Brennan and Bill Hall of East Boston will meet in a six round bout.

Four rounds will complete the card.

HARVARD WRESTLING TITLE BOUTS MARCH 18

Harvard will hold its wrestling championships March 18 instead of the 11th as previously announced, it was announced by Coach Dave Caffrey. Manchuria won preliminaries for the following afternoon. In a triangular meet with Yale and Princeton, Harvard defeated Princeton 20 to 11 and Yale 21 to 10. Princeton defeated Yale 21 to 10.

BOSTON COLLEGE FIVE TO PLAY HOLY CROSS

The Boston College five will attempt to even the basketball score with Holy Cross in a game to be played in the Worcester city tonight. The Holy Cross will be in first place and therefore the B. C. team will have to defeat the Worcesterites to tie for the championship of the First Army corps area.

ZIM'S CHARGES MAY WRECK THE GIANTS

Action by Judge Landis Awaited With Interest by New York Fans

By HUGH FULLERTON.

Judge Landis has another tremendous problem on his hands, and one that may cause more excitement in baseball than a million of his decisions and baseball commissioners. Ban Johnson has made charges against Manager John J. McGraw of the New York baseball team, and has made charges against Ty Cobb, also first baseman of the New York baseball team, and has asked that the case be tried at baseball headquarters in Chicago.

Accusations Must Be Investigated at Once

Judge Landis has charges before him, and he will have to investigate them at once, or be charged with dodging the issue. The charges against McGraw are of a character that cannot be ignored, and Ban Johnson has made it clear that he will not consider the case unless he is present at the hearing.

He has said that if Cobb has such charges against him as Johnson has made against McGraw, he will be suspended at once, and that he will not play baseball while they were pending.

Johnson has said publicly that he will not consider the case unless he is present at the hearing, and he

CALVERLY, his eyes shining now, looked down at her

"How're very tired," he said

"Yes. It's been pretty stirring And I'm not strong——" this with a touch of impatience. "I must . . ." she glanced toward door and the wheel-chair.

His eyes followed hers how colored and bit her lip.

"Yes" she said. "I must go back."

"I—if you don't mind—I'll to carry you . . ."

She lay back for a long moment with closed eyes.

Then, with an abruptness that startled him—it was the Jim Canley strain in her again—she began replacing the papers in the safe. He helped with this; then pushed the steel door to for her, and spun the knob.

And then—teeth set, pulse racing, the hot color suddenly flooding cheek and temples—hesitating a little, hesitating too long, he bent to pick her up.

She raised a hand.

"It's understood?" she asked, a note of timidity in her voice that he found unnerving. "You'll write it as I wished."

"I'll try," he said huskily, and took her hand.

"It's understood?" she asked again.

"Yes . . . it's understood.

Then he lifted her and carried her back to her chair. And her hair brushed his cheek.

He stood over her.

"There's one thing I must tell you," he began hotly.

"Please!" she breathed. couldn't look up at him now. sorry—I must rest."

He sank down in Jim Canley's swivel chair; stared at the narrow door that he had closed on her sprang up and rushed toward it; came slowly back; sat again, staring now at the row of wire baskets set out on desk by Mr. Ammet and then dropped his head on his arms and sobbed.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

THE talk, that evening, between Qualters and Amme was in the Qualters home. Amme was well away before Mayor Tim came.

Amme was disturbed.

"Cornie," said he, when the study door was safely closed, "what was on your mind yesterday when you called up about this fellow Stafford?"

Nothing much. Clear?"

"No, thanks. What do you know about him?"

"Nothing at all."

"Now I. What does Bob know?"

"Hardly more, I think. We've got to go a little easy with Bob."

"Yes, I know, but——"

"The publishers promised Bim on Bob. Guard and he are old friends."

"Then they know."

"Possibly. They published a book he wrote."

"Can't we run him down there?"

"I'll take it up. Have you talked with the man?"

"A little, this morning."

"How'd he impress you?"

"Very ably. Utterly incompetent, I should say"

"Hardly that. He can write."

"I know, but he's irresponsible. . . . See here, Cornie, I hadn't we better lay the situation frankly before Bob? Really, we ought to know a little something about the Qualters meditated; shook his head. "No, let's not talk to Bob. We'd just ruffle him more. Leave it to me for a few days."

"Yes, but meantime there he is, with access to a considerable part of the correspondence."

"You went through it first, of course?"

"Oh, yes. But there are loads, here and there, among the business letters—"

"Which an utterly incompetent man would hardly have the brains to follow up."

"True enough. I suppose we needn't feel hurried. At best a man could spend weeks—months—reading the things I set out for him.

But can you keep Tim MacIntyre quiet"

"Tim hasn't been to you?"

"Yes."

Qualters frowned.

"One thing," he remarked, casually—"when does Miriam come into the property"

"She has the house and contents now"

"Yes, but——"

"Oh the whole thing, you mean?"

"Yes—Canley Estate."

"Um her twenty-fifth birthday—October sixth."

"Next October?"

Amme bowed

"We've got time enough to turn around, then. Who are the other trustees?"

"Hewins myself? Harvey O'Rail and Bob Listerly."

Father gets only cash, doesn't she?"

And securities. About a third. Mr. Canley figured on her husband doing a bit of the providing."

A little later, when he had again carefully closed the study door, he turned charily on the flushed, slightly drunken Mayor.

"Tim, I told you to keep your shirt on."

"Now, see here—"

"Don't talk that way to me! I'm attending to this little matter at the Canleys'. I don't want you running around talking"

"Really, Qualters—"

"Drop that, Tim! You've been to Amme. Stop it! Keep still!"

"But that fellow—"

"I'm attending to that. I'm going to New York tonight. You've got to keep quiet. Don't go around reminding people of the contents of that safe, or you'll have 'em looking it up."

"See here!" The Mayor was on his feet, standing over the quietly smoking Qualters; his voice rising to an oratorical pitch; a tremulous forefinger waving high. "What do you know about the contents of that safe? I'd like you to understand—"

"Sit down, Tim. I know more than you think. Let me see if I can make you understand this. Responsible business men aren't in the habit of telling their daughters of their little personal weaknesses. And invalid young ladies aren't given to studying business docu-

Dejected Tone

The Mayor here spoke in a surprisingly sensible, if dejected tone. He even sat down to it.

"Mr. Canley," was his remark, "was honester than most. Yes, and more outspoken. He gave that girl the combination of the safe. And God knows what he didn't tell her! That—that's why I'm scared, Qualters."

"But why didn't you stop at a little blackmailing, Tim? Couldn't you let well enough alone?"

"How could I help it, I'd like to know? It was years later. And Amme had left me. I'd got married. Where was I then? Tell me that! She had a reputation of her own to look out for. And he saw it. He had me."

"But at that, you needn't have put it in writing."

"Oh, I needn't!" Mayor Tim sprang up again. "A lot you know about it. I'd like to have seen you face him down. I had to have the money. Amme was stinging me hard then. She never let up. And there we were in Mr. Canley's study. He stood over us—wrote it out with his own hand. Told me to sign or he'd break my damned neck, and he'd have done it."

"But couldn't the two of you——"

"Would you have had us kill him? Jim Canley? I tell you, Qualters, he had us! Why Harvey——"

He stopped short. His mouth sagged at the corners, his eyes bulged, his breath went short.

Qualters had risen. Perhaps he hadn't heard. He was going through some papers on his desk

"I've got to make the 10 o'clock, Tim. So glad to talk longer with you, but not tonight."

Qualters had several important conferences and a directors' meeting or two to attend in New York, but he found time to take up, in his quietly offhand way, the Stafford matter. Not wishing to appear in it himself, he first called up the manager of a detective agency that had done much work for the Painter interests, and later took a friendly newspaper publisher into his confidence. The publisher passed the query along to his "literary editor." An "operative" from the detective agency took Guard's stenographer to Coney Island on the saturday evening

Meanwhile Harvey O'Rail found occasion to remark to Hannibal Simmons that an outright gift to the city of twenty thousand dollars on the part of an unknown young man who was glad to pick up a bank literary job at thirty-five a week had a queer smell. Pshy. Might easily be that there were papers in Jim Canley's study that the Pacific Northwestern people or the enterprising group that had lately bought into the Middle Seas Line would give a fortune to get hold of. Might even be blackmail along some new and clever line. And on a large scale. It would be very interesting indeed to know a little more about that check. Thirty-five-dollar-a-week men weren't commonly philanthropists.

Changed the Subject

He changed the subject there. But Simmons, his curiosity stirred, started a little inquiry of his own. It was rather delicate; he couldn't press it far. But he was able to inform his friend, on the Saturday, that the man Stafford had no account in the Chicago bank that drew the check to him. So far as could be learned he had no bank-account at all; certainly none here in the city.

Mr. Amme took the matter up with Will Appleby, Kather Canley's husband. This at the Town Club, over the highballs. Will had fairly large manufacturing interests, down along the river.

"It's a bit awkward, Will," he said. "Im a way the matter of the book was left in Bob's hands. But he shouldn't have gone ahead and put a man actually in there without so much as consulting the other trustees. He was touchy over the row with Tim MacIntyre."

"But who is this fellow?"

"That's what we can't find out. Except that he's the man that wrote the Macintyre story in Bob's paper. A complete stranger."

"And Bob has put him in there? Turned him loose in Mr. Canley's study?"

Mr. Amme bowed.

"But that can't be! That book is a job for an old friend, or at least for a responsible man, known to the family. Bob spoke once of old Litt' "

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

BY HELEN ROWLAND

A FLIRT is a person with a syncopated heart, which plays a continuous jazzomotive, instead of a pastoral or a moonlight sonata.

It is harder than ever for a man to resist temptation these dry-law days, because he has to hunt so long before he can find anything to "resist."

Have you read Margot Asquith's "Autobiography"? I would rather have her conceit than all the beauty of an houri! I would rather have her self appreciation than all the charm and brilliancy of Ninon de l'Enclos! Her aplomb would be worth more to any girl than a cool million!

To be born an unconscious egotist is more profitable than to be born with a silver spoon in your mouth!

What a man calls "love" is merely his blind determination to endow a woman with all the qualities of an angel, a witch, a Madonna, a kitten, and a siren. What he calls "disillusionment" is the discovery that she is just a nice, ordinary, normal human being.

The difference between a man's idea of happiness and a woman's is demonstrated at the age of five, when the little girl puts a piece of wedding cake under her pillow, hoping for a beautiful dream, and the little boy insists on eating his, preferring the flesh pots of reality.

No man was ever crushed by a woman's arguments; but he can be completely suffocated by her dead silence.

A smile from a pretty girl will take more years off a man's shoulders, and a compliment from a fascinating man will do more to rejuvenate a woman than all the thyroid gland pills and all the fountains of youth that have ever yet been invented or discovered

OF course the news flew like wild-fire, and stories of various kinds got into the newspapers.

Some gossips opined that Rufus Treck-mann had committed suicide; others, that he had gone off with another woman than his wife, while still another group averred that he had never been as rich as he had pretended to be, but had been living by his wits in New York, then had fled to avoid the consequences of his acts

It was not until Pelham had taken matters into his own hands and had announced that the house in the West Seventies was for sale that Peter and Mary actually appreciated what was confronting them.

Little People Care

"We'll have to take a small apartment at once," Peter declared

He did not know that Mary had received a note from Mortimer Lawrence, asking when he might call upon her. She had not yet answered it.

"I have not heard a word from Lewis Sheldon, by the way," she remarked.

Her brother gave vent to a short laugh. "No, nor from Irene Lawrence, now more than Haights—nor from any of that crowd, I warrant," he scoffed.

That afternoon Mary sent for the automobile and went downtown.

The next morning she made a startling announcement.

"I have sold my evening wrap," she said

"I am going to put my roadster on the market tomorrow," Peter said

Sophia, sitting by, spoke suddenly

Peter changed the subject quickly. He was learning to watch his mother as he had never watched her before. And he wanted to spare her all unnecessary agitation.

"I have found a flat for us," Mary announced a few days later. "It is a walk-up, not an elevator place "

Girl Flushed

"A walk-up!" Peter echoed. "Oh, Molly, that is a come-down"

The girl flushed, yet laughed. "A come-down and a go-up," she jested. "But I don't care. I am fast getting to the point where I think that the only real come-down is to get what you haven't the money to pay for."

"I guess you're right," Peter agreed submissively. "Only—well—it's devilish hard"

"Life is!" was the succinct rejoinder. "Anyway, the flat's a decent little place in the Eighties, near Columbus avenue, and got far from the Park. We'll move in as soon as we can. We can't keep this house going without servants, unless mither works herself to death. And, moreover"—with a shudder—"I hate it!"

Her mother had out her hand to her. "So do I, dear," she whispered. "Let us get away as soon as we can"

That night Mary wrote to Mortimer Lawrence that they were moving next week, and that when they were settled in their new quarters he might call.

And that same evening Peter waylaid Theo Dale as she came out of the theatre

"Theo," he said "I am a poor man and can't take you anywhere to eat tonight"

"But, please, may I ride home in the subway and street car with you?

"I SHALL found institutions for research of disease, hospitals, playgrounds, libraries and schools. And I shall make the university here one of the best in the country. What more, may I ask, would you have me do?"

"Ah," replied the rector, "it is not what I would have you do it is not, indeed, a question of 'doing,' but of seeing

"You speak of giving," Hodder continued "and you have nothing to give—nothing You are poorer today than the humblest man who has not a cent. But you have much, you have all to restore " Without raising his voice, the rector had contrived to put a mighty emphasis on the word "You speak of the labor of giving, but if you seek your God and haply find him you will not rest night or day while you live until you have restored every dollar possible of that which you have wrongfully taken from others."

John Hodder rose and raised his arm in effective protest against the interruption Eldon Parr was about to make. He bore him down.

"I know what you are going to say, Mr. Parr—that it is not practical. That word 'practical' is the barrier between you and your God. I tell you that God can make anything practical. Your conscience, the spirit, tortures you today, but you have not had enough torture, you still think to escape easily, to keep the sympathy of a world which despises you You are afraid to do what God would have you do. You have the opportunity, through grace, by your example to leave the world better than you found it, to do a thing of such magnitude as is given to few men, to confess before all that your life has been blind and wicked. That is what the Spirit is trying to teach you. But you fear the ridicule of the other blind men, you have not the faith to believe that many of you would be opened by your act The very shame of such a confession, you think, is not to be borne"

"Suppose I acknowledge, which I do not, your preposterous charge, how would you propose to do this thing?"

Very Simple

"It is very simple," said the rector, "so far as the actual method of procedure goes. You have only to establish a board of men in whom you have confidence—a court of claims, so to speak—to pass upon the validity of every application, not from a business standpoint alone, but from one of a broad justice and equity. And not only that. I should have it an important part of the duties of this board to discover for themselves other claimants who may not, for various reasons, come forward. In the case of the Consolidated Tractions, for instance, there are doubtless many men like Garvin who invested their savings largely on the strength of your name. You cannot bring him back to life, restore him to his family as he was before you embittered him, but it would be a comparatively easy matter to return to his widow, with compound interest, the sum which he invested."

"For the sake of argument," said Elden Parr, "what would you do with the innumerable impostors who would overwhelm such a board with claims that they had bought and sold stock at a loss? And that is only one case I could mention"

"Would it be so dreadful a thing," asked Hodder, "to run the risk of making a few mistakes? It would not be business, you say. If you had the desire to do this, you would dismiss such an obsession from your brain, you would prefer to err on the side of justice and mercy. And no matter how able your board, in making restitution you could at best expect to mend only a fraction of the wrongs you have done"

"I shall waive, for the moment, my contention that the Consolidated Tractions Company had it succeeded, would greatly have benefited the city. Even if it had been the iniquitous, piratical transaction you suggest, why should I assume the responsibility for all who were concerned in it?"

"If the grace were given you to do this, that question would answer itself," the rector replied "The awful sense of responsibility, which you now lack, would overwhelm you."

"You have made me out a rascal and a charlatan," said Eldon Parr, "and I have listened patiently in my desire to be fair, to learn from your own lips whether there were anything in the extraordinary philosophy you have taken up, and which you are pleased to call Christianity. If you will permit me to be as frank as you have been. It appears to me as sheer nonsense and folly, and if it were put into practice the world be reduced at once to chaos and anarchy."

"There is no danger, I am sorry to say, of its being put into practice at once," said Hodder, smiling sadly.

"I hope not," answered the banker, dryly. "Utopia is a dream in which those who do the rough work of the world cannot afford to indulge. And there is one more question. You will, no doubt, deride it as practical, but to my mind it is very much to the point. You condemn the business practices in which I have engaged all my life as utterly unchristian. If you are logical, you will admit that no man or woman who owns stock in a modern corporation is, according to your definition, Christian, and, to use your own phrase, can enter the kingdom of God. I can tell you, as one who knows, that there is no corporation in this country which, in the struggle to maintain itself, is not forced to adopt the natural law of the survival of the fittest, which you condemn. Your own salary, while you had it, came from men who had made the money in corporations. Business is business, and deficit of no sentimental considerations. If you can get around that fact, I will gladly bow to your genius. Should you succeed in re-establishing St. John's on what you call a free basis—and in my opinion you will not—even then the money you would live on, and which supported the church, would be directly or indirectly derived from corporations."

"I do not propose to enter into an economic argument with you, Mr. Parr, but if you tell me that the flagrant practices indulged in by those who organized the Consolidated Traction Company can be excused under any code of morals, any conception of Christianity, I tell you they cannot. What do we see today in your business world? Boards of directors, trusted by stockholders, betraying their trust, withholding information in order to profit thereby, buying and selling stock secretly; stock watering, selling to the public diluted values—all kinds of iniquity and abuse of power which I need not go into. Do you mean to tell me on the pies that business is business and hence a department by itself, that deception, cheating and stealing are justified and necessary? The awakened conscience of the public is condemning you.

"The time is at hand, though neither you nor I may live to see it, when the public conscience itself is beginning to perceive this higher justice hidden from you. And you are attempting to mislead when you do not distinguish between the men who, for their own gain and power, mismanage such corporations as are mismanaged, and those who own stock and are misled

"The public conscience of which I speak is the leaven of Christianity at work. And we must be content to work with it, to await its fulfilment, to realize that no one of us can change the world, but can only do his part in making it better. The least we can do is to refuse to indulge in practices which jeopardize our own souls, to remain poor if we cannot make wealth honestly. Say what you will, the Christian government we are approaching will not recognize property, because it is gradually becoming clear that the holding of property delays the kingdom at which you scoff, giving the man who owns it a power over the body of the man who does not. Property produces slavery, since it compels those who have none to work for those who have.

Possession of Property

"The possession of property, or of sufficient property to give one individual an advantage over his fellows, is inconsistent with Christianity. Hence it will be done away with, but only when enough have been emancipated to carry this into effect. Hence the saying of our Lord about the needle's eye—the danger to the soul of him who owns much property

"And how about your Christian view of the world as a vale of tears?" Eldon Parr inquired.

"So long as humanity exists there will always be tears," admitted the rector. "But it is a false Christianity which does not bid us work for our fellow men, to relieve their suffering and make the world brighter. It is becoming clear that the way to do this effectively is through communities, co-operation—through nations, and not individuals. And this, if you like, is practical—so practical that the men like you, who have gained unexampled privileges, fear it more and more. The old Christian misconception, that the world is essentially a bad place, and which has served the ends of your privilege, is going by forever. And the motto of the citizens of the future will be the Christian motto, "I am my brother's keeper" The world is a good place because the Spirit is continually working in it, to make it better. And life is good, if only we take the right view of it—the revealed view"

"What you say is all very fine," said Eldon Parr. "And I have heard it before, from the disconcerted, the Socialists. But it does not take into account the one essential element, human nature."

"On the other hand, your scheme of life fails to reckon with the greater factor, divine nature," Hodder replied

Rules of the Movie Play Title Test

The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser's new Movie Play Title Test is a test of skill and judgment. It is all readers of the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, irrespective of age, living in any city or town in New England or Canada.

Two hundred and nineteen cash awards will be given by these two newspapers to those readers who submit the largest percentage of correct titles to the 16 pictures to be published one each day consecutively in the Daily American and Sunday Advertiser.

All employes of the Boston American, the Boston Sunday Advertiser and their families are barred from participating in this contest.

The Test will consist of 16 pictures, representing the title of a Movie Picture Play, to be printed one each day in the Boston American and Boston Sunday Advertiser, first picture, Sunday, February 27, 1921.

Participation in any other contest which has been run, which is now running or which may be run in the Boston American or Sunday Boston Sunday Advertiser will not debar any one from entering this Test.

Every participant and all members of a family will be allowed to submit one set of pictures, but each must contain only ONE TITLE to each picture and no participant shall be entitled to more than one prize, and not more than one award shall be given to any one family.

Each and every title must be neatly written or printed on the coupon furnished by the Boston American or Boston Sunday Advertiser, or a pen or pencil copy thereof, and must have the name, residence, etc., of the participant on each title blank.

Do not send your titles in "list" form, i. e., do not write titles under one another as if in a column.

Where there are not complete sets of correct titles awards will be given to the person submitting the largest correct solutions, giving weight to skill and judgment.

In case of a tie, awards will be made on the basis of neatness, judgment and exactness, but if the tie cannot be decided in that way the tied participants will receive equal awards.

Under no circumstances should participants send in their titles before the end of the Test, as each set before the last picture is printed will not be considered. KEEP your titles from day to day and at the end of the Test arrange them in numerical order and then send them in all together at one time.

Time will not be a factor in making the awards. The first titles sent in after the Test closes will stand no better than the last submitted.

All titles must be delivered to the Boston American Movie Play Title Headquarters at No. 80 Summer street, Boston 9, Mass., either by mail or in person within the specified time limit which will be announced later.

All envelopes or packages containing titles must be legibly addressed to Movie Play Title Editor, Boston American, 80 Summer street, Boston 9, Mass., P. O. Box 2007, and each envelope or package must bear the name and address of the sender legibly written or stamped on the upper left-hand corner.

As all pictures in the Test will contain written or printed matter, if mailed, it is absolutely necessary that the package be fully prepaid with postage at the first-class rate, otherwise all the titles will suffer first-class matter. The Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to refuse to consider any sets of titles on which pictures of postal orders are not fully prepaid.

There will be no title or answer book to buy. Lists of Movie Titles will be printed in the Boston American and the Boston Sunday Advertiser. This list appearing will rank among others the correct titles.

Participants who desire further information should address their inquiries to the Movie Play Title Editor, No. 80 Summer street, Boston 9, Mass. Questions will be answered as far as possible through the columns of the Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser, but the Movie Play Title Editor will, on their complaint sufficient postage for such reply, or they may phone Main 5180 or call in person.

The Boston American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser reserve the right to make any change in, or addition to, these conditions that they may deem necessary for fairly and properly conducting the Test, and the decision of the Boston American or the Title Editor on any question which may arise will be accepted final, and the entry of a participant is a complete acceptance of all conditions and regulations now made or to be made.

DETAILS OF THE MOVIE PLAY TITLE TEST, WITH NAMES OF THE CO-OPERATING THEATRES, WILL BE FOUND ON PAGE 6

Good Judgment After Eating

Giving the Stomach the Alkaline Effect by a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet is Worth Remembering

You cannot, as a rule, say in advance that this, that or the other food will cause indigestion. Experience has taught most people that even minus ple fits snugly at times, while at others a glass of milk raises hobs with the stomach.

One good rule to follow in the preventative measure of taking one or two Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals. You thus avoid gas, sour, sick stomach, heartburn and such distresses due to indigestion or dyspepsia. These tablets also help to digest the food by giving the stomach the alkaline effect to offset acidity; they relieve the distress when the mince pie or milk should be more than a match for your digestive powers. A 50-cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets at any drug store will help wonderfully to set and to calm the stomach when it feels all upset.

'ON THE JOB'

ANNIE R. MAXWELL

EYE DIAGNOSIS IS SCORNED BY HUB DOCTORS

"Show Us First," They Say, of Method to Find Ills in Look of Irises

Clement Jeffery, London doctor, may look into the irises of your eyes and read there your ailment, but Boston doctors are iris shy.

Dr. Clement Jeffery, according to recent dispatches, has just discovered a method of "iridiagnosis," whereby he can detect many of the diseases of man by the appearance of the iris of the eye.

This method "will revolutionize the practice of medicine," says the dispatch, "if it is wonderful and scientific it cancer may be detected in its earliest stage. There will be fewer illnesses than the medical profession finds out how to read irises."

To which Boston doctors, with caution and scepticism and extreme medical reserve, reply: "Let them show us first."

Dr. A. Myerson of Beacon street, authority on nerves, and visiting specialist on nervous diseases to the Boston City Hospital, thought that perhaps too much was claimed for the new method. As he pointed out:

"For half a century physicians have examined the eyes in the investigation of certain diseases. But to claim that broken legs and incipient cancer leave their traces in the iris probably is too extravagant."

DISEASES AFFECT PUPILS.

"I doubt very much if the claims can be substantiated. Some things about the eye we know from of old. We know that emotion and feeling express themselves in the eye in widening of the pupils. We know that the pupils change remarkably from fear and excitement. In certain diseases of the brain, again, the pupils differ from each other in their size and shape. They are less mobile and irregular.

"That cancer, that a fractured leg, leave their residuals in the appearance of the pupils of the eye seem utterly unbelievable."

Dr. Myerson referred to the claim that a Hungarian doctor had found in the iris of an owl a mark left there by its sufferings from a broken leg.

"The doctor some years later discovered a similar dark spot in the iris of a man who had also broken a leg. A long period of observation proved that the ills and the accidents of the body are mirrored in the irises.

"Such a belief, at any rate, commented Dr. Myerson, "would take a lot of proving. It sounds a bit frankish. Its hope may be deceitful, on the other hand. A clear eye may go with grave illness, and a cloudy eye with good health. Beauty and nature, expression, form and shape of eye, may be confounded with effects due to illness. I would hesitate to give credence to this new iridiagnosis until it was fully demonstrated."

WOMAN DOCTOR SKEPTICAL.

To which Dr. Elisa Taylor Ransom, formerly a lecturer at Boston University Medical College on nervous diseases, gave agreement. "It would be a wonderful boon to humanity if it were so," said she, "but I have my doubts. We already know, as common medical property, how to read certain troubles in the appearance of the eyes. A pin head pupil, for instance, may mean general paresis. Other conditions also may mirror themselves in pin head pupils.

"Locomotor ataxia is diagnosed partially by what is called the Argyle-Robertson pupil. The expansion and contraction of the iris of the eye has for many years given the physician certain data relative to the cranial nerves.

"Uneven and irregular irises reveal certain conditions of the nervous mechanism. I can understand seeing the soul of a man in his eye, but I cannot understand seeing his whole physical condition.

"But I feel this way—it is no use to deny that, maybe, the whole physical condition may some day be read in the eye. I would be glad if it could be demonstrated. It would be a boon to humanity is such a mirror of the physical condition could suddenly be opened up to the doctor, revealed in his patient's eye."

PAVLOWA'S ART RISES TO NEW HEIGHTS

Dancer, With Her Ballet Russe, Gives Spirited Performance at Symphony Hall

Mlle. Anna Pavlowa and her Ballet Russe gave their third recital in Symphony Hall last night. The house was crowded.

The dances were marked by their artistry, their color fulness and their sane grace of manner and performance.

It opened with "The Enchanted Lake," a dance narrative founded on an old Russian legend. Arensky, the Russian musician, has adapted to this conception of the story the works of Schubert. The ballet is conceived and carried out to please the casual spectacle lover as well as the critical musician and dancer.

EACH NUMBER COMPLETE.

As Arends adapted the compositions of Schubert to "The Enchanted Lake," so did Glazounov, the musician Claudine, the ballet master, and Fokine collaborate in adapting Chopin to a set of ballet dances.

Each of the nine numbers is complete in itself; each giving the mood of Chopin with charm, simplicity and clearness.

Quite the best number of the evening was, of course, Pavlowa's solo, "The Dragonfly." Her perfection of technique, her power and sprightliness ran on along with irresistible joyousness.

"DANCE OF HOURS" GIVEN.

The Masurka, danced by Mlles. Lindowska, Sakova, Huard, Vertes, Uni-Vajinski, Pianowski, Talewski and Demosiawski, was another popular number.

Other dances on the program were: "Pastorale," "Holland Dance," "Arab's Dance," "Scherzo Mazurka," and "The Dance of the Hours."

CHOCORUA SENDS $42 TO AID IRISH FUND

Among the contributions just received at the headquarters of the American Committee for the Relief of Ireland, No. 126 Devonshire street, is one of $42 collected in a small community at the foot of Mount Chocorua, in New Hampshire.

The woman who sends it writes in part: "I am sending you this money that I got for a little entertainment which I organized for the starving people of Ireland. I live among Americans of non-Celtic descension, but their sympathy and kindness is in evidence."

Cardinal O'Connell, through his secretary, Mgr. P. J. Haberlin, has contributed a check of $250. Other contributions acknowledged were from the Stationary Firemen and Oilers of Fall River, $50; the Knights of Columbus of Danvers, $10, and the Fall River Union of City Employes, $80.

ENGLISH HIGH SCHOOL GRADUATES AT REUNION

A banquet and reunion of the class of '68, English High School, now held at the Hotel Westminster, Providence avenue, the members being the guests of George H. Leighton and Andrew J. Heller. More than $1,000 was raised for the school centenary fund to give needy boys a chance to obtain a high school education. Charles F. Lebon, head of the French department, spoke. The committee in charge consisted of Mark W. Burlingame, John W. Purdy and Andrew J. Heller.

Way Should Be Found to Reduce Fire Loss

Mr. Alfred Davenport has called to our attention House bill No. 31, which will shortly reach a critical stage in the Legislature. The purpose of this bill is to reduce the wasteful fire loss by requiring the individual whose criminal intent, design or wilful negligence is responsible for a fire to reimburse the city or town for the expense of extinguishing the fire.

The use of the apparatus, the pro rata wages of the firemen and such similar expense to the municipality would be included in the amount for which the malicious or careless person would be held liable.

It is a notorious fact that we now suffer the reputation of being the most wasteful nation in the world. Any reasonable attempt which can be made to obviate this waste, especially the destruction of dwellings during the housing emergency, ought not to be overlooked. The Legislature would do well to consult thoroughly with Mr. Davenport in this matter.

Lloyd George's Price for Allies' Invasion

The cession of part of Syria by France to England is the price which Lloyd George exacted for his consent to the military invasion of the German Republic, demanded by the French when the German government declined to pledge itself to pay an impossible indemnity.

France has always been extremely jealous of her claim to rule Syria—though when either France or England got any right to rule and exploit the Syrian people nobody can say.

England has long desired to get control of Syrian territory through which she can build a railway to connect the Mediterranean coast with the Mesopotamian railway system, and continue this to India.

It was the Kaiser's plan to build a competitive railway through the Near East to the Persian Gulf which was largely responsible for England's war-like indignation over the breach of Belgian neutrality. With Germany overthrown and subjugated for a generation, England can now build the railway which the Germans so sinfully wanted to build first.

To do this, however, England had to secure a strip of Syrian territory, held by the French military forces, strictly, of course, in defence of the rights of small and weak nations to govern themselves as they think best. Lloyd George had thwarted French proposals to complete the political and industrial destruction of Germany with his usual virtuous air. The French militarists are not simpletons like some Americans are. They do not believe English protestations of pious concern for the moralities. They reasoned that Monsieur George must WANT SOMETHING when he talked so piously about magnanimous treatment of the defeated and almost hopeless German people, so they proceeded to find out what he wanted.

That is why a French invasion of Germany was planned, why Europe is sliding into the frightful abyss of anarchy and ruin and why England is getting ready to construct a railway that will enable her to pour troops into India and eventually control all the commerce between Europe and Asia.

It is a great game, and it is a pity that so few of the men who set themselves up as guides to American public opinion know anything about it or even suspect that it is being played until it is all over and the winners have pocketed their gains.

People Have Been Killed for Less Than This

It is rather to be regretted that the New York police magistrate who heard the complaint of the two painters against the lady who was giving a musicale dismissed the case so summarily. The questions involved in the controversy were not settled, and unless the painters take their case to a higher court the legal status of Art versus Music will not be satisfactorily established.

The painters, Francis Newton and Childe Hassam, complained that the instrumental music and the singing in Mrs. R. T. Wilson's apartment annoyed them. They claimed that music should be taboo between 11 a. m. and 2 p. m., as those were "painting hours," and that after 11 p. m. all music fell into the same category with mayhem, homicide, burglary and crimes on the high C's.

Upon Mrs. Wilson's side—had the case been allowed to go before a jury—lay the contention that musicians have sensitive souls and that the paintings of Messrs. Newton and Hassam distress them. She might have claimed that, after a careful scrutiny of the latest exhibition at the Academy of Design, the legitimate hours for painting are from 7 a. m. to 7:30 a. m. on every February 29th.

The magistrate should have asked Mrs. Wilson's performers to play and sing in court and then should have made Messrs. Newton and Hassam paint a picture. Under our criminal code, what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. After gazing at the paintings His Honor could easily have held the painters for the Grand Jury.

Or, after the painters had testified that the singing in Mrs. Wilson's apartment had caused them pain, Mrs. Wilson's guests should have been allowed to inspect the work in the painters' studios and the evidence of expert alienists brought in to prove just how much mental anguish they suffered.

It is a well-known scientific fact that many an exhibition of paintings in the Academy of Design or the highest efforts of the Impressionists, Post-Impressionists and Impressionistic-Posts has caused, in the beholders, symptoms of dementia præcox or agitans horribilis or, even, a violent tendency to bustimibus nosae. The magistrate really missed the chance of his life.

The brief testimony in the case brought out the fact that while a performer was playing a Mendelssohn concerto the painters sounded on their ceiling. If this had been held justifiable, then, under the Solomonic code of a glass eye for a porcelain tooth, Mrs. Wilson might have allowed her bathtub to overflow and leak into the painters' studios while they were painting a desert scene.

But a startling truth came home to me
With sudden force last night.
What is it? Shall I tell you?
Nay, that is why I go.
I am running away from the battlefield,
Turning my back on the foe.

Riddles? You think me cruel!
Have you not been most kind?
Why, when you question me like that
What answer can I find?
You fear you failed to amuse me,
Your husband's friend and guest,
Whom he bade you entertain and please—
Well, you have done your best.

Then why am I going?
A friend of mine abroad,
Whose theories I have been acting upon,
Has proven himself a fraud.
You have heard me quote from Plato
A thousand times, no doubt;
Well, I have discovered he did not know
What he was talking about.

You think I am speaking strangely?
You cannot understand?
Well, let me look down into your eyes,
And let me take your hand.
I am running away from danger—
I am flying before I fall;
I am going, because with heart and soul,
I love you—that is all.

There, now, you are white with anger,
I knew it would be so;
You should not question a man too close
When he tells you he must go.

GIRLS WILL STILL BE NEEDED

Boston is going to try to get along without telephone girls in the not distant future, but nobody has been able to invent an automatic manicuring outfit.

IT DOES HAPPEN

It is possible, after all, to get something for nothing. Many a washerwoman's lazy husband did it.

Men, Wives and Stenographers

Should a wife be jealous of her husband's stenographer?

It is a question as old as the business world itself. Doubtless Plutarch's spouse was accustomed to cast baleful glances at the young lady who took her husband's dictation back in the dim ages of history. The matter has been troubling married women ever since.

Boston has had the question brought sharply to its attention of late. Several prominent business men, in the past year or two, have eloped with comely members of their office forces.

The Boston Sunday Advertiser has been investigating this matter of stenographers, husbands and wives. It has come to certain conclusions which will make interesting reading for the stenographers, the husbands and, above all, for the wives. The story appears, with interesting detail, in the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

Never try to make your left-handed child use his right instead. If you do, you will have a little stammerer in your family.

That is the conclusion of scientists, who for years have been studying right and left-handedness, and its causes. They have discovered that the left-handed youngster who is forced to learn to write with his right hand sets up a new speech centre in his little brain, and that the confusion which results causes the distressing hesitation in his speech which handicaps him in later years.

Read about it in the Magazine Section of the Boston Sunday Advertiser.

The revelations of Audrey Munson, queen of the artists' studios of New York, one of the most popular features ever printed by any newspaper anywhere, are continued in the coming issue of the Boston Sunday Advertiser's Magazine Section. Miss Munson, in her story this week, tells something of the "night life" which beautiful models enjoy, and describes some of the tragedies which have resulted from their weaknesses.

Kathleen and Jim, heroine and hero of "The Great Secret," Neil Brinkley's charming picture serial, make their bow of farewell in the Magazine Section next Sunday. All our readers will want the beautiful Brinkley drawing which accompanies the story in order to fill out the complete set of eighteen. A full-page color drawing, entitled "The Cup of Love," concludes the series.

"STANDING STILL" IS MISTAKE OF MANY

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

TALKING to a gathering of his employes not long ago, a famous newspaper publisher said this:

Too many of us spend too much of our time thinking of what we have done. Too few of us spend enough time thinking of what we should do.

There is a world of truth in the thought.

Many a man makes the mistake of resting on his past laurels until the laurels are completely withered. He accomplishes some noteworthy feat and keeps thinking about it until he one day suddenly discovers that everybody else has forgotten it.

Eddie Rickenbacker, the famous American ace, who downed twenty-six German planes, has a favorite expression which puts the thought of the newspaper publisher in another form:

"A man can't stand still," says Eddie.

Went Into Business

When he came back from France, covered with medals and glory, Rickenbacker did not spend much time thinking of his deeds. He went into business. He knew that he might rest for a time on his laurels, but that the world would soon forget, and one cannot eat forgotten laurels.

Joe Gans was a colored prize fighter, one of the greatest of his time, and said by some experts to have been the greatest of all time. He had a mother with a gift for turning crude epigrams. It was Gans' mother who sent her son a telegram just before his battle with Nelson, at Goldfield, that became famous.

"Bring home the bacon, Joe," read the message.

Later, on the eve of another fight, Joe received a telegram from his parent, which in two words, summed up much of what I have said above.

"Keep stepping, Joe," it read.

In Baseball

The great pitcher, Mathewson, now fighting the White Plague up at Lake Saranac, was not rated in baseball history on any one game, but on his succession of successes over a long stretch of years.

Slang puts it: "It isn't what you used to be, it's what you are today."

The accomplishments of yesterday are highly commendable, but they are accomplished, and it's time to think of the things that remain to be accomplished.

"A man can't stand still."

"Keep stepping!"

Letters to the Editor

Railroad Problem

Editor Boston American:

The railroad question seems to be important. I have twenty years experience on railroads and have seen some changes, but never so unsettled as now. There does not seem to be any great secrets as to the causes, to me it seems as though they could straighten out without reducing wages or increasing rates. There are many ways the roads could see daylight if they cared to, as follows:

1. Stop "bluffing."
2. Officials too many.
3. Some department will have to run on business principles.
4. The men will have to give a day's work for a day's pay.
5. The men should be allowed their brains—at present very often they wait hours for orders from the "boss" (as arranged by officials).
6. Running too strictly on department lines instead of as a railroad.
7. Race and fraternal orders should play a lesser role.

TRAGEDY OF TRUSTING COUNTRY GIRL

By Nellie Bly

THEY had always prayed for a child, but none had come to bless their home until at last they became resigned to their childless condition. Then, to their astonishment, in their old age, came a little one, a girl baby.

And it was this girl upon whom fell the mantle of protection and care of the aged woman when the father died. She began the very night of his burial.

After she had put butter in a hot skillet and chopped in some cold boiled potatoes, seasoning them with pepper and salt and a goodly allowance of sweet milk, she had enticed her mother by the very fumes of the frying to eat. Then she went off to return the bonnet borrowed for the occasion from a bereaved neighbor. As she passed the one and only store, the coatless proprietor called after her.

"Elizabeth," he shouted, "want to earn five cents? Deliver this package quick as you can, and I'll pay you for it."

'Errand Boy"

That was the beginning. Every day thereafter Elizabeth was the storekeeper's "errand boy." Her little legs fairly flew over the rough, unpaved streets, and every night before going to bed she and her mother gloated and chuckled and laughed and counted the nickels and dimes which rewarded her labor.

Long years passed away, and all the village talked about this good, faithful daughter. She was now a clerk for the storekeeper, and they had a wagon to make deliveries. And as a clerk she was a "cracker-jack." Everybody knew Elizabeth; everybody liked her, and everybody spoke of her only to praise her.

Then came the serpent into the Garden of Eden. A traveling salesman saw the gentle Elizabeth, and her pretty face aroused his wickedness.

I don't need to describe the result. It is always the same. The more innocent the girl the quicker it is done.

One bleak, dark morning, exactly sixteen years since the burial of the father, Elizabeth slid under the pillow of her mother a handkerchief containing all her life-long savings. It was less than a hundred dollars, choking back her tears, she softly kissed her sleeping mother and stole silently out of her home. She caught a night train which would in four hours land her in New York.

I can't say what his motives were, and I haven't the slightest idea of what he thought he could gain, but when Elizabeth wrote him that positively the last hour had arrived and that she must come to him and that he must marry her, he sent her a letter. In this letter he gave her directions exactly what train to take, telling her what hour it would arrive in New York city and telling her exactly in what part of the station they would meet.

Of course, he was not there. She had a few clothes and a comb and brush wrapped in a plain brown paper. After paying for her ticket she had exactly one dollar in change left.

Hour after hour she sat in that railway station. She was hungry and faint. She had no place to go, and she knew no one in this vast New York except the man.

And then as the heart-broken desolation, she suddenly remembered an article I had written saying that no girl need die and no unwanted baby need be killed or abandoned. With red and bloated face she timidly approached a big policeman and between her sobs asked him:

"Do you know where I can find Nellie Bly?"

Told Her Story

He sent her to me. It was almost six o'clock on a Saturday afternoon, and I had protested I would not see anyone under any circumstances before Monday. And I had some very interesting people visiting me at the time.

I shut out the visitors, and Elizabeth told me her story, and cried. And I asked Elizabeth questions, and also cried. And then I hustled her down to a taxi. The great, big starter is one of the same kind—he never has to ask questions, but immediately senses the necessity for quick action. He called a cab, and, without saying a word, but with pitying eyes, helped us both in, and shouted to the driver:

"St. Mark's Hospital! Ile as quick as you can."

Down at St. Mark's I have Elizabeth's baby girl. Healthy and beautiful, exquisitely formed, and weighing eleven pounds at birth. It is mine. To keep or to give to some childless family.

And in a bare furnished room sits Elizabeth, the child of sorrow. The whole atmosphere is filled with uncertainties. She cannot decide what to do. If she goes back, what can she say? If she remains, what is to become of her mother?

And I must let poor Elizabeth decide for herself.
